NORSE NOTES ON

NORTHGLENN HIGH'S 1985
NORDIC SAGA

Your Key To The Classics

ANTHONY ROBERTS

A Note to the Reader

These notes present a clear discussion of the action and thought of the work under consideration and a concise interpretation of its artistic merits and its significance.

They are intended as a supplementary aid to the serious Norseman. They are helpful in eliminating the burden of trying to remember the full year and sorting through memories to find that which is of central importance.

These notes are not a substitute for the 1984-1985 year itself or for the memorable times spent at Northglenn Senior High, and Norsemen who so attempt to use them in this way are denying themselves the very essence of high school life that they are presumably giving their most vital years to achieve.

These critical evaluations have been prepared by experts who have had one or more years in evaluating and catching the true Norse spirit. They are not, however, incontrovertible. No judgements are. There are many interpretations of any great school year, and even conflicting views have value for any Norseman, since the aim is not for the Norseman to accept unquestionably any one interpretation, but to make his own.

The experience of thousands of Norsemen who have passed through these corridors over many years has shown that notes, such as these, are a valuable tool, and properly used, can contribute materially to the great end of a Norse Year — that is, to the heightening of perception and awareness, the extending of sympathy, and the attainment of maturity by living, in Socrates' famous phrase, "the examined life."

No, this isn't just another Cliff's Notes analysis of another novel, so

NORSE-Take Note!

Congratulations! You have just written another opening, another show, another school year, another book — yes, this is the tale of the 1984-1985 school year, a story of sobriety and state championships. It is the year of Northglenn High's twentieth anniversary. Should we celebrate the anniversary? The twentieth is not silver or gold; it is china! Nah, that would crack us up! Let's tell the history of NGHS, or Northglenn. We could show how the school has grown from one to six buildings. We could show 104th Avenue when it was a dirt road instead of a congested eight lane highway. Nah, let's tell the story of the greatest story ever told —

As the student body prepares to live its novel, Norse Learn the Clock is RUNNING

"It was a message all adults try to convey, but the A-TEAM gave it like it really is, whereas most adults say it softly and without energy," Cindy Dugger analyzed. Yet students took it defensively. Girls should wear dresses? What an infringement on rights . . . yet the A-TEAM was preparing the Norse for the real world . . . where no one hires a girl in faded jeans. A group of five who had "paid their dues," experienced athletic and financial success, and had almost lost it, roughly jolted the complacency. "Tick Tock, the clock is running," they warned. Too rough? Perhaps, but for many, it was the first assembly that they had listened to.

"Tick Tock," the world is waiting. Today's decisions do affect one's future. One has to be oneself. One has to stand up for what one believes.

An emotionally charged audience left in tears; highly motivated, but in tears. "Tick Tock." The clock is running. "If I am going to be something, I have to start now," vowed Andrea Molliconi.

Tick Tock

"I said Tick Tock, the Clock is running, this is now; you must wake up and see the real world." Walter Hollins, an extremely verbal member of the A-TEAM, warned students where they will go in life if they don't change now.

The time for setting up concessions is running out for junior class sponsor Linda Walthers, as she discusses ideas with Administrative Assistant Linda Jepsen. At every home football game the new Mrs. Walthers (nee Linda Moody) was there early supervising the concession stand.

Math teacher Mike Carlson shows the humor shared by the rest of the school as sophomores Dave Trembly and Rich Unger, with hands over heart, pledge themselves into the never ending excitement of high school at the first sophomore assembly. Though this assembly was filled with enthusiasm, their next assembly came as quite a shock as the A-TEAM explained to them the real world and the Tick Tock of The Clock.

Emptiness in the halls doesn't reflect the accomplishments of the Norse as proclaimed by the #1 sign in the background. The sophomores had one extra initiation as they were forced to go part of the first semester without lockers; due to the increased enrollment, the old full length lockers were replaced by half lockers in September.

Early deadlines hurry students to the bookkeepers to buy their lasting memory, The Nordic Saga. Sophomore Kjell Wangaard made sure he would have his, as he made the money exchange with Mrs. Modica before the lunch rush.

"Ho, Ho, Ho, Merry Christmas!" the newly crowned Santa Claus (Mr. Gorce) shouts while dancing with Mrs. Claus (Mrs. Kistler). The annual Christmas dance brought the honor of Mr. Claus for the second consecutive year to jolly 'ole Mr. Gorce.

Learning social graces is part of high school and Desirae Lewis, Brady Meyer, Troy Meyer and his guest, and Kelly Carry practice having the good times that make high school the novel experience that it is.

Sophomore Chris Gilbreath takes a short breath after working hard to prepare for the upcoming football season. The weight-room provided a summer weight program every year.

Since time is of the essence,

Norse Never Waste a Second, An Opportunity

Time is essence. In this complex world, every tick of the clock marks a point in history, each minute opens a door to the future, and every hour is now. And that's the way the Norse lived 1985. Gathering two state titles in less than three weeks was enough to set 1984-1985 apart from past Norse history. The general attitude of a Norseman was that of commitment and wanting only the top notch spot. And since time is of the essence, Norse never wasted a moment. They knew when to dance, when to learn, when to exercise, when to live. Through it all, they were Committed to Excellence.

With their social life consisting mainly of daytime junior high dances and in-class parties, the sophomores who attended the Homecoming Dance discover a whole new meaning to school activities. Attending their first major high school social event as Norsemen, and women, these high spirited sophomores, Burt Gallegos, Jean Frank, Kevin Asklund, Marlene Doman, Pat McGinn, Robbie Peter, Mike Banchak, Gene Donlin, and Mitchell Frakes begin to write their own saga.

The Homecoming crowd at the dance eagerly forms an aisle in which the royalty takes their walk to the stand. A red rose rests upon Jodi Newman's arm as she is escorted to the throne by Homecoming King Brien Hodges to accept her place as Senior Attendant.

Smiles of royalty shine through for Junior Escort and Attendant Kelly Whitmer and Cindy Hicks as they dance in the spot light after being announced as royalty. Kelly played fullback on the boys state championship soccer team, while Cindy was actively enrolled in Student Council as president of the Junior Class.

Norse photographers shoot fellow Norse to capture history To Compile List of Characters

What's a novel without pictures? Copy can only tell part of the SAGA. Consequently, the Norse camera was everywhere, capturing the moments as Norsemen-and ladies-lived 1984-85. Yearbookers roped photography students and even parents into capturing the moment. Everywhere, Norse were being watched. Norse were being captured.

Try to escape to Central City and there was a Norse camera. Get lost in a crowd at the football game and there was a Norse camera. Sneak into the library . . . gotcha!

Come October 17th and all Norse lined up in the small gym to have School Pictures take a mug shot. After all, shouldn't the novel we were all living have a picture of all the characters (and there were a few at Northglenn High!). Saga staffers tried in vain to get the faculty to pony up but resorted to some old photos for the camera shy. And seniors scurried to the professional and brought in their black and white glossy by December 1st. And thus, the mug section of Norse characters was compiled.

Senior Mica Smith tries to get the perfect shot by lying in the weeds at the historic graveyard in upper Central City.

A group of concerned faces look on as the Norse football team battles against a tough opponent. Attendance at games was larger than past years, as Norse athletes proved they were the best in the state.

Sophomores John Norris, Mark Waite, Eric Fionowich, and Kelly Danaher study their driver's education while relaxing in the sun at Norse Park. Summer school saw the return of many old Norse as well as many new Norse who either wanted to further their education, or catch up on lost credits in order to graduate.

Junior Troy Buttan relaxes in the library where he is caught on film by the Norse camera. The library proved to be a sanctuary for students, as many entered its doors to "read a good book."

Photographers Lee Majerus and Tom Lachermeyer stride to get the "perfect picture" as they lie on the streets of Central City. Teacher Rich White took his photo classes on the annual excursion to shoot the historic town and its people.

Media Specialist Joanne Bagstad and English teacher Jim Studholme discuss how many copies of a test need to be run off as AV and Gary Morris looks on. Mrs. Bagstad proved to be a great help to all teachers as she usually spent a large portion of her time running off copies for them, and her importance to the school was evident on her two forced days off (Every classified employee was forced to take days off due to district budget cuts).

Senior Scott Dragon lets the Norse camera know he's the boss as he flashes a starting gun before a sophomore cross country race. Scott played an integral part on the boys A-team, capturing the title of most valuable runner and the spot of team captain.

Number One!

"For Whom Does the Bell Toll?" It tolls not for the class of 1985 as they celebrate the end of their novel high school career

Norse seniors posed for the annual senior picture in December taken by photographers from Prestige Portraits. Even though the weather was cold, the Norse seniors showed their pride and proved that they are the future

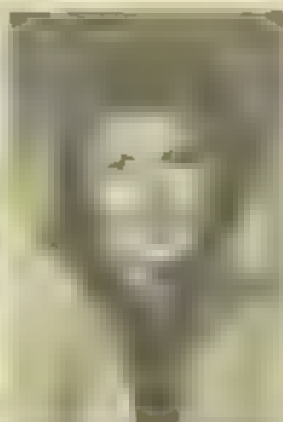

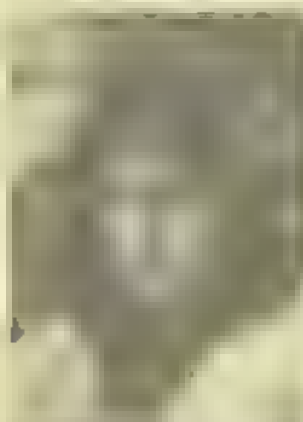

Motto of "We are the Future" hails

'85 Top Twenty

For the sixth year in a row, the Nordic Saga conducted elections of the Twenty Outstanding Seniors who are committed to Excellence. After a nomination process, points were awarded for character, attendance, GPA, in and out-of-school activities, and voting by both seniors and faculty. Northglenn City Clerk Joni Baker taught Don Shelley's classes to conduct the election on April 24. The election was held at the Northglenn High School. The Awards Assembly in May.

Principal George McCullough presents certificates to National Merit Finalists Noelle Meade and Anne Wright. A third, David Cobble, moved out of state but is eligible to continue in the competition at his new school.

As the year progresses,

Juniors Forge a Portrait of the Future

Becoming a junior brought on a variety of new feelings. Each student felt differently about their junior year. To some, it was a feeling of more power. To others, it was a feeling of just existing. But for all, it was a new experience.

One of the main experiences that most juniors endured was the joy of having a car. Having a car meant no more walking to lunch, or eating at the school on cold days. It also meant having a car for transportation on the weekends. To a junior, this new found freedom was a step towards a fate called adulthood.

Another hurdle for juniors to cross was planning more seriously toward their life after high school. This meant thinking about college and taking classes to help their life time goals. It also meant taking the PSAT test. To some, the test was a worrisome task. To others, it was just another job to be done. But for all, it was an important duty in planning the future.

A new change juniors faced in the spring was a switch from arena style to computer registration for the 85-86 year. Because of new state legislation, the school had to change over to this new procedure, and an annual tradition came to an end. Needless to say, the computer registration was confusing to all. Currently in use at rival school Thornton, the new registration made students decide their class arrangements for the whole year instead of just for the semester. Norse juniors, and sophomores alike, had to decide and prepare their future school year in advance.

Startled by a flash of a camera, Linda Kerman and Susan McNamee look up from their studies in Expos/Writing. Heavy concentration and a will to do 'tons' of homework were required to complete the grueling class

A letter jacket shows true commitment as Roland Bruggeman, Steve Dahmer, and Robert Culp wear them with pride. All three were dedicated to their own individual sports, as well as many other clubs and activities at Northglenn

Smiles accompany hard work as junior Eric Combs and sophomores Chris Glibreath, Tara Maxwell, and Richard Bird work on Expos. Eric Combs, an avid weightlifter, was one of the few juniors brave enough to take the class ruled predominately by sophomores

A study table in the library provides sophomore Darrell Mikan and friends with a chance to talk. The library was a new experience for sophomores as the electronic warning system always seemed to catch an unwary sophomore accidentally taking a book

August 27, 1984, saw a new chapter on school careers as the class of '87

Paints a Portrait of the Soph as a Young Norse

Recalling old traditions and requirements of high school, one saw that changes had indeed occurred. And sophomores, apart from having to deal with coming to a new school, now had to deal with the new changes

An example of the changes were new requirements for graduation. In the past, students were required to have at least six credits of English, math, and academics. However, sophomores were faced with a larger load consisting of nine required basic credits and only five elective credits

Yet another change that sophomores had to adjust to was the singing of the Mickey Mouse theme by upperclassmen at assemblies. In the past, sophomores sat speechless — not knowing what to say or do. However, the class of '87 came back with a reply which put juniors and seniors in their place. The first assembly proved to be a true shocker as sophomores, although out of tune, belted out the reply "M.I.G.H.T.Y S O P H S!"

Although these changes from junior high and past traditions may have been difficult to accept, the sophomore class took the problem in hand, thus proving the class of '87 indeed had a profound amount of spirit.

Class officers, Theresa Parsely (Vice Pres.), Scott Nagel (Pres.), and Gayla Jennings (Sec/Treas.), provide smiles for the Norse photographer as they take a break from class. The trio had a busy year planning events such as fundraisers and the Sweetheart Dance for sophomores.

The library provides Michelle Horst with a quiet place to get away from the rigorous school day. Michelle proved to be a true academic Norse by excelling in grammar with straight A's.

"Never a dull moment" is probably on the minds of Mike Barbour's classmates as he scribbles a sentence on the blackboard for Grammar/Expos. Mike was another example of the sophomores who took the preparatory class for CP Comp.

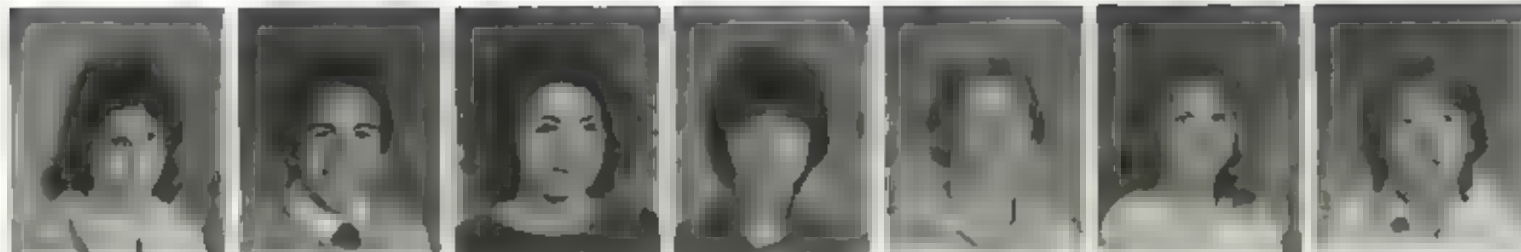

"A class run by sophomores?" is questioned by Kelly Whitmer as sophomores C J McCarthy and Mike Barbour teach the class. C J and Kelly both proved to be assets to Norse Athletics as they participated in Cross Country and/or Soccer.

The wait to march in the first state competition is not easy on the nerves as shown on the faces of new sophomores and veteran juniors and seniors. Many new sophomores found out what marching band was really about as rigorous practices and endless drills filled the last days of summer vacation.

A new idea, movies on Friday night, was a huge success. As hoards of Norse joined the fun, the Friday night movie was a success. Sponsored by Student Government, the Movie Night was well attended by all who attended, making a good night with all Norse.

As the school year went on, the Norse side of the school was becoming more and more popular. The Norse side was becoming a happy place for many Norse students because of the fun.

Norse take note as

in past years, sophomores were hesitant and nervous about entering the strange surroundings of high school. They would ask where classes were, where the locker rooms were, and what time the bells would ring. "How long for lunch?"

Can one leave school grounds for lunch?

Could someone give me a ride to school?

However, an exception was made for those who entered the school in the fall of 1984. They knew what was going on. They knew where things were, and they didn't ask as many questions; they already knew the answers. The juniors and seniors were asking the question, "Who do they think they are?" and "Where did they get so smart?" But one thing that did seem to stick was that they were nervous — all of which was natural. No matter how hard they tried, they would never be perfect, but they were now Norse sophomores!

As the school year went on, the Norse side of the school was becoming more and more popular. The Norse side was becoming a happy place for many Norse students because of the fun.

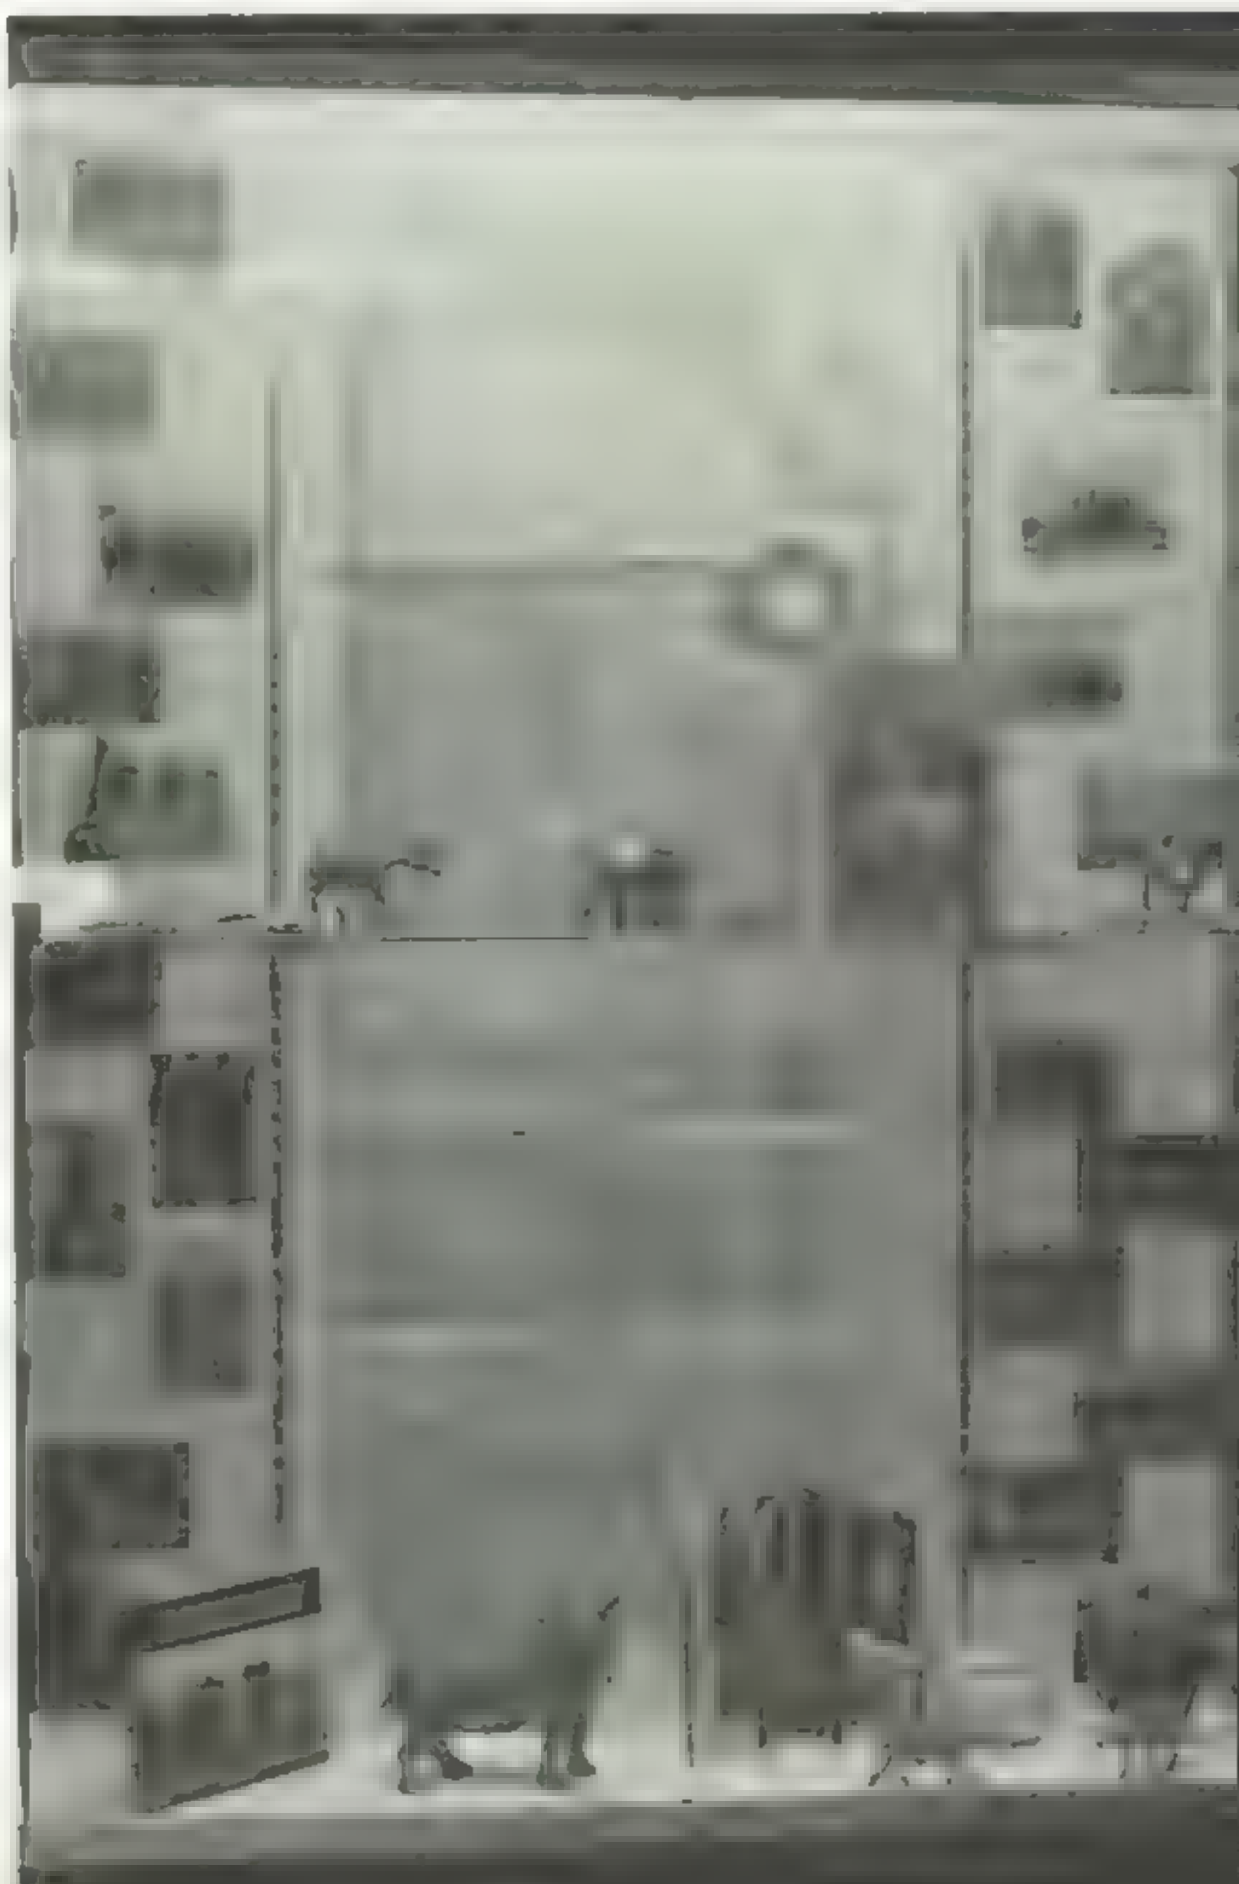

Faculty, traveling the land "down under" and beyond insisted on Bringing The World Home To NGHS

The experience of teaching in a foreign country although only for a school year, was unique and treasured by all who took part. This teacher-exchange found NGHS saying good-bye to a few familiar faces and greeting new ones with Norse hospitality

Bidding farewell to Mr. Pat Amato, gym teacher and the Cross Country coach, as he left to teach in Adelaide, Australia was a heavy experience for runners. Replacing him was Mr. Tony Hodgins from Adelaide, Australia. Hodgens taught in the Physical Ed. Dept. Mr. Amato and Mr. Hodgins literally traded places: houses, cars, and life styles

Mr. Shawn Armour returned to NGHS after teaching at Banksia Park High in Australia. While he taught biology to high school students, he also studied the unique ecologies of the outback and the rainforest

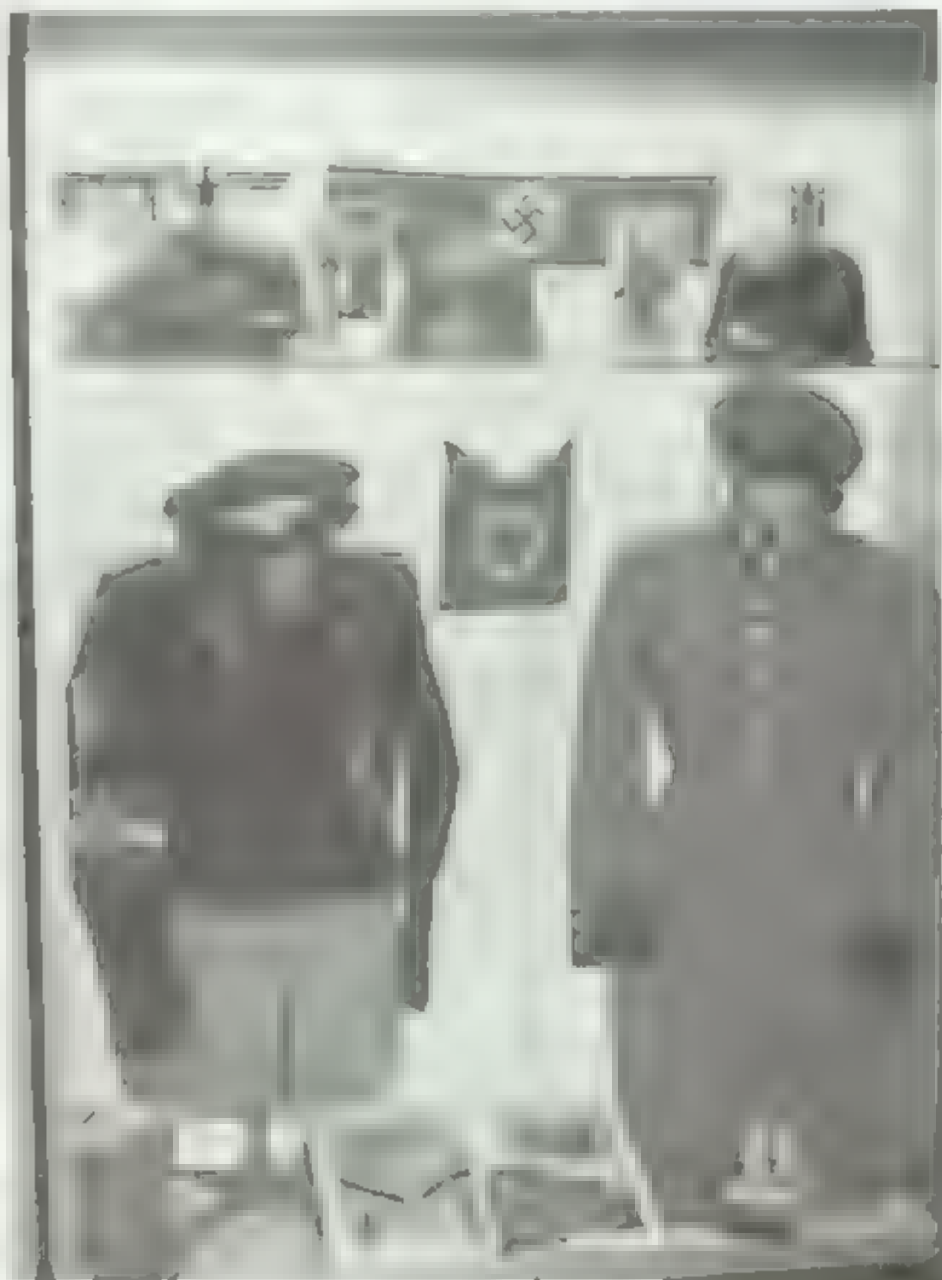

The success of the teacher-exchange was more than obvious with all the positive recall. The process was becoming more and more popular with many teachers wishing to experience life 'down under.'

An interesting conversation between Mrs. Marie Gay and Andy Gillett appears to be of major importance as they model their khaki attire. M*A*S*H Day provided Norse with a time to reminisce the popular long running series.

A colorful bit of history graces the showcase of the library as original Nazi uniforms stand long with other Nazi-Germany memorabilia. Thanks to the time and effort of Mr. Schweissing and his father, the Norse had a chance to experience one of the most powerful eras in recent world history.

Taking time out from packing and unpacking is Mr. Pat Amato and Mr. Tony Hodgins. Mr. Amato, Cross Country coach and PE teacher, taught in Australia while Mr. Hodgins, Australian PE teacher, directed classes at Northglenn.

A koala provides a bit of symbolism for Mr. Geoffry Higgs and Mr. Shaun Armour who both participate in the Australian exchange program. Mr. Higgs, who is a native Aussie, taught at NGHS while Mr. Armour found out what living "down under" was all about.

The Great Smoke Out wasn't just an event to stop smoking for one day, it was also the Administrators and Camate Committees Welcome Back to a faculty of many changes. Also on hand were Harvey Guest, Assistant to Superintendent; Ross Sibley Board Member; and Chuck Buchanan, Board Member Special efforts made to start off the new year Without putting up a smokescreen.

The hierarchy put their money where their mouth was, no smoke screen of "we really care" was given to the 112 faculty who taught at NGHS in '84-'85

Instead, from the board members who joined the teachers for a cook out to the district offering free use of the pool and weight room to employees and families, the message was one of concern, care, and support

New Assistant Superintendent Dr. Carol Wilson reassessed the district's programs and, making a real effort to hear faculty concerns, revamped some objective type programs, thus easing the workload of red tape

The message, over and over again, was one of "we want you to teach. We want you to be well and enjoy your health, your life, your job. Then the students will obtain the maximum benefits too

So, as the Saga of '84-'85 was written, it was written with a new vim, a new vigor on the part of the faculty and administration. And the trickle down theory of positive educational benefits were carefully recorded in this, the 1985 Nordic Saga because this was your life as Norse came alive in '85!

Who's on first? Which Hall Duty area do I have? Such were the questions asked of new-Administrative Assistant Larry Smith and second year AA Len Groom. Part of the confusion was precipitated by the change of room numbers throughout NGHS. In an attempt at consistency, the old building first floor was all numbered in the 100's, the second floor the 200's, the first floor commons the 300's, the second floor new wing the 400's, the first floor gym area the 500's, the second floor gym area the 600's. Get it? odd numbers on the ground floor, even on top. "Sure, you try to change this 20 year habit of teaching in room 209 and think 509!" exclaimed a veteran Norse faculty member

Eighty-three percent of faculty admit the obvious, and

Prove that teachers have homework too!!!!

I usually do this at home weekday evenings. I spend at least five extra hours per week, but I expect from now on I'll be able to complete most of my work at school," English teacher Sue Thompson replied on the Norse teacher survey

"I usually stay after school a couple of hours and then take about one hour worth of work home two or three times a week," Beth Loomis, Con temporary Living teacher replied

During free hours I am usually helping students so I do most of it at home," mathematics teacher Joyce Blewett told the Saga

Teachers constantly were tormented by students complaining about the amount of homework they had received. Those who complained used the golden rule of "how is one supposed to have a social life with all homework?" The idea that teachers had homework never entered the mind of students, but yes, for a teacher, the homework never ends

The end of a semester was probably the roughest time of the year for a teacher. With approximately 150 (an average of five classes, with thirty students in each) finals to grade, 150 students turning in that one missing paper from seven weeks ago, and 150 students asking the dreaded "What's my grade," it was not suprising to hear many teachers yell, "Calgon take me away!"

Paper grading and working with students was not the only activities included in a teacher schedule. Teachers were constantly receiving notices of a meeting for this or a program about that with attendance a must. Every teacher planned every class day by day, and through this very careful planning, they are able to make sure that the students were receiving the best high school education possible — a Norse education!

A perfect appearing campus is a factor which the faculty feels to be a big determiner in the attitudes of the pupils. This is a factor which Custodian Rex Jones takes into consideration every day as he brings smiles of joy to the face of the school. The Indians spent a great deal of time applying themselves to the task of perfecting the appearance of the campus including spending Christmas Break waxing the classroom floors.

Even the cold weather wouldn't keep Ms. Modica, the book keeper, Mrs. Davis, sponsor of the DE Snack Shop, and Mr. Coolman, DECA teacher, away from the quarter final football game against Number 1 ranked Pomona. Going beyond the call of duty the faculty was constantly showing their spirit by attending games and school sponsored activities.

ottema wrote the Saga.

ocial Studies teacher Colleen Casey happily responded. "I have just begun. I'm looking forward to having my courses fairly set and then doing new things with them."

the golden years of retirement were fast approaching for some teachers, and were not even in the near future for others.

Pattie Anderson was able to put the retirement idea into the proper perspective for the majority of teachers. "Yes, I am looking forward to retirement because I'd like to be able to do all the things in life I want to do and not be tied down to lesson plans and grading papers. No, because it's so far away I might as well be dreaming.

When retirement was mentioned, people preconceived a picture of an elderly person just relaxing and not doing much of anything. Well, such was not the thought of the teachers who were looking forward to retirement because they planned on taking time to do more physical and recreational activities.

Over 15% of staff spend more than 15 hours after class as

Extra Duties Take Large Amount Of Time

During Volley season I will spend around 20 plus hours for practice, and then five to eight hours for preptime each week," Athletics director Coach Knecht told the Saga

"I will coach tennis in the spring, and then I will spend an approximate ten to fifteen hours a week coaching," new teacher Kathy Cocetti responded to the Saga

An estimated eighty two percent of the students participate in an extra-curricular activity, be it a sport or a club. In order for an activity to exist, it must be sponsored by a member of the faculty. Twenty nine percent of the faculty members took time away from their own social life and their own personal time which they used for planning in order to sponsor a club or sport. There were also several teachers who were committed enough to sponsor more than one activity!"

"Speech club meetings and all day Saturday meets on every other weekend. During January, February, and March, I will be spending about fifteen hours a week doing the vocal direction for "Rock and Roll," which will require around two to three hours every day after school," new speech teacher Susan Thompson replied to the Saga

Why do all of these faculty members dedicate so much of their time? They do this for the satisfaction they receive when their club takes first place, winning in a competition, or when their team grabs a first in a state title. But the biggest satisfaction they receive is holding their first meeting and realizing they don't have enough desks to hold all the interested members!

*Do you do anything

Eighty percent of staff join the national craze as Staff majority works to keep fit.

Athletics director Rich Czernich wrote to the Saga that he was "trying to work out at least three to four times a week, including such exercises as lifting weights, running, and doing aerobics."

"I keep in shape, not physically, but nutritionally, but in 1985, I plan on swimming and walking," English teacher Marie Gay told the Saga

English teacher Marty Gorce told the Saga, "jogging, bicycle riding, and an occasional game of racquet ball" were some of his favorite activities to keep in shape

When people look back on the eighties, they will remember the era of fitness and health. Such things as the Hollywood Diet, Richard Simmons Anatomy Asylum, and the ever popular Jane Fonda Workout Book swept the nation. For those not involved in athletics, the school offered many activities to make teachers, students, and parents more aware of the health and fitness craze. Wellness Week, sponsored by both Channel 9 and NGHS, was the biggest hit of the year. Teachers were offered the chance to take their classes to the Health Fair. For those who went, it turned out to be a really memorable experience. Aerobic workshops were held occasionally, and the attendance consisted of both students and parents alike.

In a 1983 Address to the Nation, President Reagan made his concern for the youth of today and the physical fitness known. President Reagan felt that the youth of today were not receiving a proper amount of exercise, which he felt to be a direct relationship to their school work. The Physical Education Department recognized the President's concern and spent many hours designing programs which help the student body become more aware of the fitness issue.

As with all fads and crazes, there were always those who just don't want to get involved. Math teacher Frank Bottema replied, "What kind of shape?"

A heavy concentration of students in extracurricular activities

Produces a Highly Noted General Analysis

Northglenn has always been noted, '84-85' being no exception, for the numerous clubs offered and the enormous student body participation. Clubs were able to participate in conferences held at the elegant Broadmoor Hotel, San Francisco, and even Fort Collins!

The students also maintained high standards when it came to sports. Many heroes were made as Jason Whitmer and the whole football team took the Norse to state, as well as the boys soccer, and both gained the "State Champ" title. Yes, one could say they were the heroes.

To continue on with the novel, Northglenn had the highest number of students in Colorado to apply to out-of-state colleges. Noting the pride students took in themselves, the class of 1985 proved that "We are the Future." Every bit of hard work and determination paid towards the final walk across that stage for the long sought diploma.

The Russian "rubles" are being collected from the Foreign Language Fair by senior Ed Butler. Offered for the first time in district 12, Russian became a popular language class as Norse and Trojans joined together to learn the difficult language.

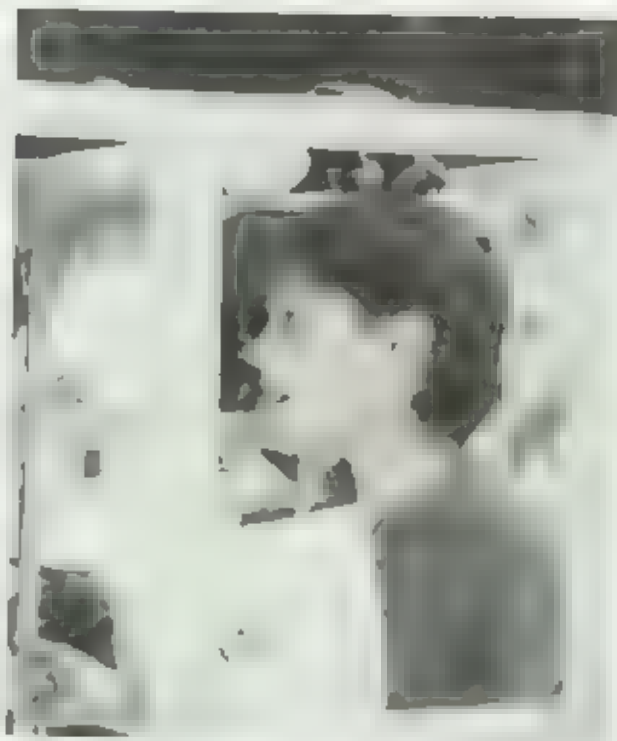

Two bright smilers after coming in from a cold day are Tara Maxwell and Cindy Johnston. Tara participated in the spirit club while Cindy was an active Drama Club member.

A familiar voice over the airways was English teacher Marty Gorce. Mr. Gorce proved to be an asset to the football and soccer season by broadcasting play by play action at every game.

Teachers match skills against students in the "peanut pass" to show their agility. But to the teachers' despair, though, the students prevailed and proved they could play the game.

Peeking out of the jail at the Foreign Language Fair is sophomore Jay Lamb. The money made at the fair was kept by the students who earned it.

An attempt to keep her typing skills up, Glenna Caltigrone practices during her free hour. As part of the new SAAP program, Ms. Caltigrone helped to constrain alcohol and drugs at NGHS.

The startling novel 1984 comes to life in the fall presentation by the Norse playhouse. Junior Frank Roark produced a stunning portrayal of Winston Smith, while Amy Willard played the lovestruck Julia.

Chapter 1

A Vanity Fair of activities provides for

A Content Norse Goes Clubbing

Keeping Norse happy, healthy, and entertained was the main objective of the Norse clubs. Taking out time to teach Norse about their health, student council worked side by side with 9-News volunteers to set up the 9-Health Fair for Northglenn students. The fair enriched students' awareness of their bodies and how they work. Another aspiring club, Key Club, assisted the community with its annual blood drive for Bonhis Blood Center. The 86 pints of blood donated by students and faculty would one day save lives. A joint effort once again proved successful with another foreign language fair. Movies were shown, dances danced, cheers cheered, and all Norse were happy.

"Wake-up and smile, Robbie, the movie is over!" Robbie Berryman along with many others brought their pillows, blankets, and munchies to the first movie night sponsored by student council.

An annual ritual of carnation sales at homecoming allows Chris Anson and Erin Sullivan to play cupid for a day. DECA classes sell carnations to raise money to pay for competitions.

The excitement from the varsity cheerleaders faces comes only after the hardwork paid off allowing them to cheer at the Denver Nuggets game. The cheers received this honor after receiving a superior rating at the Mile High Spirit Spectacular.

Glamour, glitter and garters bring out mischievous ideas during homecoming week. Along with carnation sales, DECA also raised extra money for the higher levels of competition by selling spirit items such as garters.

The strategy of keeping the strings untangled is the biggest challenge for Eddie Reeves as he takes each knot to the complexity of a wall hanging. Creative Crafts is one of the fine arts classes offered to students at Northglenn.

For natural talent and ability, Look to the "Art of Production"

Being part of a club required an extreme interest in the club area and a dedication to put in the time required for a victorious club. Several clubs in particular, in which time was truly of the essence, are classified as the Art of Production Clubs.

Truly leaving its mark on the school, Art Club made its year a real success. Club members got together for work sessions. During this time they repainted the school sign, and designed a new school flag. The Nordic Times, sponsored by Judy Gilman, hit the stands once a month, with each issue more exciting than the last. Students with journalistic ability but no time for a club could display their talent in the Sylvan. The Sylvan, sponsored by Jim Studholme, hit the presses in March for its April delivery. Keeping track of the year and saving it in a book for all Norse to cherish was the job of Barb McCarthy's Nordic Saga Yearbook Staff. Awards with high honors for the 1984 Saga gave the 1985 staff the incentive to produce "Norse Notes," a sure winner.

1984 and Rock and Roll were the first two productions to make money for the Drama Club in the past six years. For all those who produced in 1985, take note: because this page is for you.

The arrival of The Sylvan, a book full of poems, short stories, and photos all submitted by the Norse, is long awaited for by all. Jim Studholme, Sylvan Adviser, and the Sylvan staff begin preparing this booklet as early as January to assure that it would live up to all expectations.

Scholars of Northglenn learn about Tales of Foreign Lands

Overcoming cultural barriers between countries was no easy task, however, the Norse made an attempt to do so through the activities of various clubs. The sole purpose of these clubs was centered upon understanding new cultures, and this was accomplished through such activities as exploring different foods, dances, and music. Club members were able to try new foods by going to restaurants which specialized in food of the country being studied, while some students tried to make foreign dishes themselves. Music and dances were also taught for events such as the Foreign Language Fair where students shared their knowledge of other countries with other students. Organizing the Foreign Language Fair, going to Oktoberfest, and participating in the Foreign Language Invitational Bowling Tournament highlighted the year. Each club also sponsored their own float, displaying symbolism for their country in the Homecoming Parade.

Adding a certain twist to the common everyday Norse life, Norse Exercise Their Individual Tastes

Inhaling one more time James Whitbread puts his strength to test

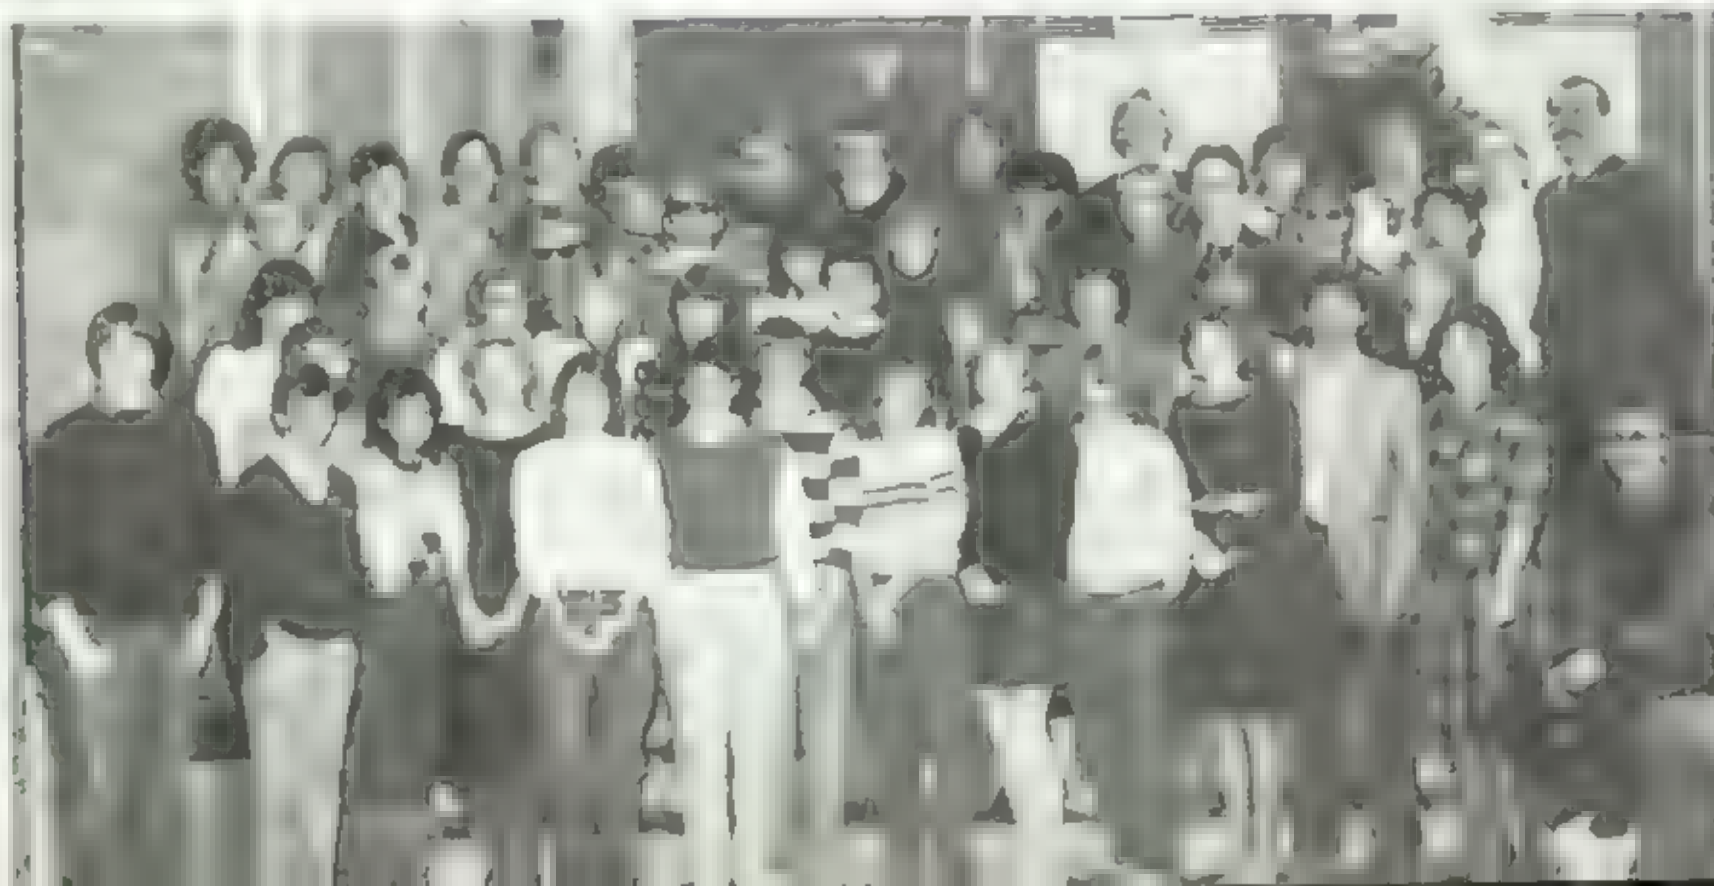

Meeting the needs and desires of the student body was one of the main objectives of the Norse Clubs. There were a great variety of clubs to go along with the vast variety of interests. The clubs added support, fun, and excitement to the every day life at school. Clubs such as the Letterman's Club supported the school in many ways. In particular, Letterman's Club supported the athletic department. Headed by Coach Rettel, the Letterman's Club was made up of students who had lettered in a sport. They sold concessions and programs during games. The money they raised helped purchase trophies, awards, weight equipment, and other athletic related things. Then there were clubs which allowed those with common interests to get together. A small but growing club in that category was the Fellowship of Christian Norse. Supported by Mr. Gallas and Mr. Cluck, students into Christianity met in a group to articulate their beliefs. Another such club which combined a common interest was the

Ski Club. This club by far had the largest interest which was to ski and have fun. Lots of wild and crazy skiers belonged to this club, and even the sponsor Mr. Miller got a "little wild." The club took a number of one-day trips to Winterpark. They all rode up together on a bus and turned the whole day into skiing. Another club almost as popular was the Powerlifting Club. This club attracted those who were into lifting weights and showing their strength. Girls as well as boys enjoyed competing in this sport. Coached by Mr. Sawdo, a weight lifter himself, the Powerlifting team represented Northglenn at a variety of meets. They sold coupons to raise money so that they could host a meet of their own. As the team entered each meet, they entered with a respectable name, the same respectable name which has been earned throughout the school. Overall, these clubs played an integral part in the lives of the students. They added a certain twist to the normal everyday school life

The powerlifting team at Northglenn, comprised of girls as well as boys, had both first and second place state trophies to prove their strength. Furnished with one of the best weight rooms around, power lifters, body builders, athletes, and those few extras crowded in everyday to workout and sometimes to check-out the sights.

Taking the challenge in hand,

Norse Students Reach Out to Help

Discouraging but fun at times describes the jobs of all these groups. The AV assistants made sure classes received all those wonderful educational films students loved so much. Only once in a while would one find them rushing to an empty room with the television so that they could catch up on daily soaps.

Student assistants weren't much better — they rushed around taking on the responsibilities of grading papers, recording grades, and filing. But let's not forget those times they took the pass to run a five minute errand that somehow really took them the whole hour to do. Do you suppose they visited friends?

Although they had their fun, they also had their frustrations, but there's a lot to learn from it. Tutors also had the chance to meet new people and pick up a little of a new language. Frustrations could be learning a new language in a new country; that's what a group of students were spending their time doing. All these jobs of the students were frustrating but educational, and somehow even fun!

Constantly being rushed and hectic describes the work of an AV assistant, but Polly King meets the challenge as any Norse would do.

Community achievement makes Norse Clubs Unique in Purpose

As some of the clubs of NGHS, FBLA, HERO Speech Club, and Key Club had their own activities to make them unique

FBLA, Future Business Leaders of America, was a club for students interested in business. FBLA sends students to compete in district competition every year. This years winners were Natalie McKeever in clerk typist II, Tracy Lynd in Records Management, Wendy Dalton in Business English, and Denise Schlattmann in Word Processing/Machine Transcription. All four girls competed in state competition

HERO, like FBLA, sends students to compete in districts competition every year. The district winners were Tina Houghton first in food service, and Connie Cruz, Jen Morris, and Kim Richardson

in Chapter Display Event

The Key Club was a club that did community projects. They held two blood drives, raising 153 units of blood. The club also donated money to the following: $200 to the Hearing Dog Program, $100 to Flight for Life, and $100 to Northglenn's Volunteer Ambulance Corp. Key Club also went to Castle Gardens and gave out carnations on Valentines day, and they were also involved in Special Olympics.

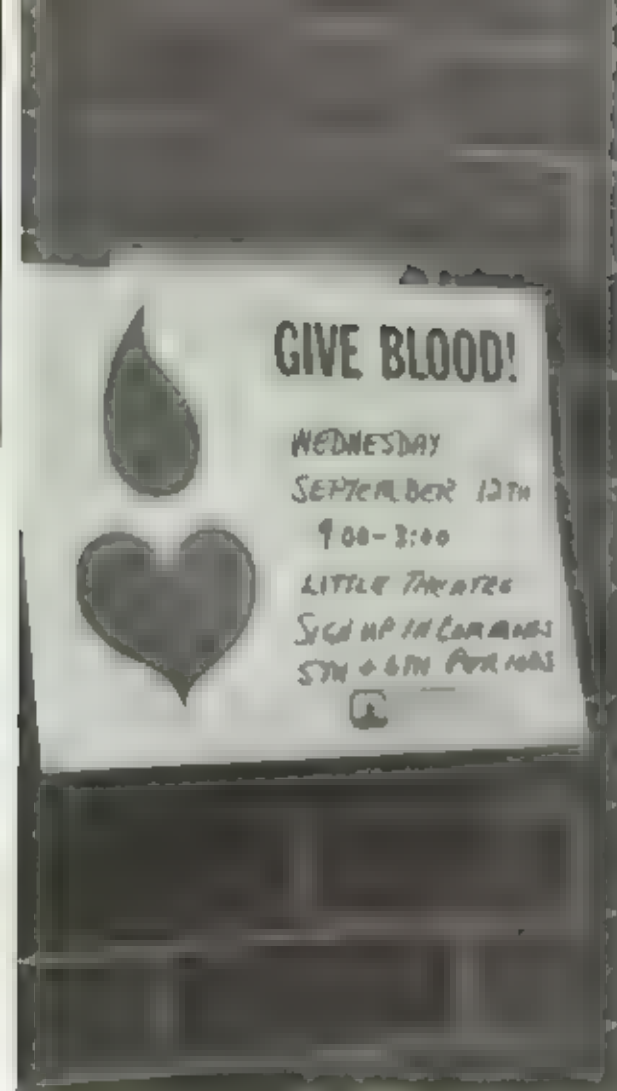

The Speech Club is a club that competes in categories such as Poetry, extemporaneous speaking, debate, and duet acting. After competing in four meets, they went to districts. Although they didn't win in districts, they were a very talented group

Extentions offer experience Setting Goals for Life

Unlike the many clubs that focused their energy mainly on school-related activities, these three clubs organized themselves by sponsoring out-of-school activities that would benefit the community. Rodeo Club, sponsored by math teacher Jack McCandless, spent a successful year in fund raising for the community by sponsoring country dances at Adam's County Fairgrounds and participating in local rodeos. Another club that was by no means confined to the school was cosmetology. The class was sponsored by the school and consisted of ten months of rigorous training at the Thornton-Northglenn Beauty College. Students learned the fine art of coiffure as they attempted to gain their Colorado Hairdresser's License. By styling the hair of local patrons, the students gained valuable experience while contributing their time and talent to the community. A new addition to the NGHs club roster came in the form of the military organization, JR ROTC. Used as a preparatory club for ROTC, the club taught students the true meaning of being a soldier in the Marine Corps. Sponsored by Counselor Irene Mable, the military club participated in various community activities, school functions, and military displays. The club also participated in a demanding boot camp to ready them for the challenges they will eventually experience as Marine Officers. Though not the most popular clubs in the school, these three proved that they were just as important to the enhancement of the Norse image.

Not only is Stephanie Salzer having fun clipping a patron's hair, but the customer seems to be enjoying the treatment too. Cosmotology was a class for seniors who wanted to enter the professional field of cutting hair.

Waiting for what she hopes is a good cut, a former student from Westminster High School lets Marn Miller style her locks. Personal contact with customers was an important lesson as students learned to not only cut hair, but communicate with their clientele as well.

A short break is needed for Stephanie Salzer and her friends after a long day of training. The class, which offers seven credits for completion, consists of ten months of hard work at the Thornton-Northglenn Beauty College.

Some clubs have fun by Stimulating the Brain, Competing

There are always clubs that define fun as a healthy stimulation of the mental process. One such club that promoted mental activity was the National Honor Society. Fueled with interest generated by the craze for trivia games, the Knowledge Bowl was one of the most popular of their activities. As one of the best of the teams, Ed Butler, Mike Koertje, Craig Kohne, Rich Learned, and Amintore Schenkel went on to take first at Highland Invitational.

Another club which went into competition was the Chess Club. Divided into two teams, the club spent many hours after school refining their chess strategies. At the Pueblo Invitational, the A team took first and the B team received fourth. On the fourth board, Travis Goss won first place for individual play. At the State Invitational, the club once again played with excellence.

Working on other games of strategy and tactics, the Strategic Games Club explored many different games. Games such as AD&D, Risk, Star Fleet Battles, and Squad Leader helped the "player generals" learn overall strategy not limited to a particular form.

Dealing with world-wide strategy of politics, the International Relations Club provided insights to other countries. Discussing the state of world affairs, the IRC members were some of the most knowledgeable people on foreign politics throughout the year. Three Model Uns, simulations of the real UN, were held during the year to demonstrate the complexities of world politics. Attended by several of IRC clubs of schools across the state, the three day Model UN held at Greeley at the end of the year was thought of as a highlight of the year.

Student Body requires perfection according to Norse Code, and Student Council Delivers Via Mavro, MacCarter

The Student Government and the General Assembly members not only voiced the student body's complaints and opinions, but they worked hard to keep the momentum of NGHS going at a rapid pace. The students composed of Student Government members and General Assembly members strived to meet the demands of the student body "We want more dances," cried the third hour representatives as they met in the general assembly. The need was answered. Student Government, spearheaded by Mike Koerte, Karen Colvard, and Holly Bullock, hosted more dances than in years past. They also sponsored the first annual dollar movie night featuring Dudley Moore as "Arthur." The positive outcome of this is a sure thing of a new tradition at NGHS

Through careful planning for assemblies by Amy Hulstrom and Brien Hodges, Head Girl and Head Boy, the assemblies had an increase in attendance. The students and the teachers participated in the most uncommon of activities during these assemblies

By way of diligent planning for dances, assemblies, and out of school activities, the General Assembly members and the Student Government members created a pleasant atmosphere throughout NGHS

Halls come alive with sound of music

As Tate Returns

Aside from being classes where students go to sing, the Norse Choirs were also academic classes. Students learned to read music, hear pitches, and put correct rhythms to the music they had learned. Peggy Tate, Choir Director, brought the students far since the beginning of the year. She had taken them from unorganized to a near perfect sounding group. Choirs included in her daily schedule were Chamber Choir, Concert Choir, and the awesome Northern Lights Vocal Jazz Ensemble. Ms. Tate also provided the students with a leadership environment by appointing a Choir Council, with President Rachel Renz and Vice President Danita Wright. Choir Council helped Ms. Tate decide fundraisers and locations for performances. Fundraisers included selling herbs and spices, which came in decorative tins, and assorted hand made and decorative candles. Chamber Choir performed a most colorful Christmas concert held in the school auditorium, producing positive results with the audience.

Mike White rejoins Norse Faculty as Melodies Begin To Ring Again

Despite the fact that the Jazz Musicians had to adapt to two directors in less than one year, new music director Mike White turned things around as the amount of participation turned up. In the fall they attended the Pikes Peak Invitational Jazz Festival and received Superior 1 ratings from all judges as well as outstanding Trumpet section. As many people were enjoying the spring musical "Rock and Roll," Mr. White was busy directing and producing the music. All this was done while new baby White was sleeping in the back row! Actually, at the Christmas concert another district music director waited in the audience with Mrs. White who was expecting at any minute. But since the show must go on, soon-to-be daddy Mr. White rose to the occasion and directed one of the best attended concerts in a long time at Northglenn High School.

Guided individual instruction from new instructor Mike White has helped the Northglenn Jazz Band to become tops in state. Taking excellent ratings at all competitions, the band proved that athletics are not the only thing NGHS excelled at.

A new director and changing of the guard meant change, but Norse Band Still Tops, Take State Second

The Northglenn Award Winning Band began its season on a note of scepticism. With new band director Mike White taking the reigns of the state's best band, critics all over the area concluded that the Northglenn Dynasty was over. But much to the despair of the many critics, the Dynasty had survived the power change and came through once again to prove that they were the best. The season began in August as band members blew the cobwebs off the instruments and started warming up for what would become a sensational season. Sophomores found out what hard work marching really was, and a champion band began to take shape. Disappointment came early in the season, though. A heart rendering second place finish to Pueblo South at Gate Way to the Rockies spread rumors through out the state of Northglenn's defeat. But being true Norse, the band was determined to bounce back. The chance to prove themselves came on a cold night in October at District 30 Stadium. Competing against other area bands, Northglenn proved their championship form by taking Districts. But before the season would end, the final battle would come at state. Pueblo South had been on Northglenn's tail for two years, and their chance to take over the state championship was evident. On a sunny Saturday afternoon, Pueblo South beat the defending state champions in a close contest. Tears were shed, and foul play was called by most involved. But being the true champions they are, Northglenn congratulated the winners and promised to come out fighting next year. Northglenn, though not ranked the best in the state, had proven that they were not dead, but the best marching band around.

The concentration on the faces of the horn line as they start the Arvada Harvest Day Parade shows the key to Norse Band success.

The flag line twirls an exciting show to accompany the music of the band. Led by instructors Dan Lynn Marvin, and former Norseman, Chris Sauzo, the flag line, along with the rifles, added color and creativity to the marching drills.

The Northglenn drum line, considered one of the tops in the nation, keeps the band in step as they tap out the beat. Led by captain Bill Gilpatrick, the line captured top awards at district competition in October.

At the District #41 Stadium Kim McNatt drum major receives a trophy from one of the judges. Northglenn came in first place in regionals.

Whether in pep club, or selected as a member of a Norse Spirit Squad Extremely Hard Work, Dedication Produce Excellence

A high school activity just would not be the same without the rows of spirited red and gold cheerleaders. The cheerleaders and pompons combined with the pep club in the stands makes a game what it is. What would happen if there were no one there to root on those fantastic Norsemen?

Cheerleaders and Pompons had to have a special dedication to make their school pride the best

There were always posters in the halls, and crepe paper streamed along the lockers and stairways. They even gave up their lunch hour just to practice cheering. Now that's dedication, and it paid off as all three squads received awards at state. Varsity received a superior, and Poms and JV received excellent awards.

The Pep Club, on the other hand, was just as successful as the cheering clubs in promoting spirit. During homecoming, they sold the ever popular red and gold kazooos, a big hit among Norsemen and always heard in the hallways, at powderpuff, and at homecoming game. A school without spirit is like a building without walls; it's needed to hold things together and add a little pizzazz to everything. The spirit leaders added that pizzazz as the Nordic Saga unfolded.

For the first time in years, the JV squad was made up entirely of sophomores, yet they took themselves to the top and received an excellent award at state.

CHAPTER II

As Seasons Progress,

Athletes Reach Great Expectations!

The student body screamed for champions and Norse teams responded with astounding victories. The boys soccer team heard the cries and answered with a sweeping undefeated record, capturing the state title!

Even after a rough season start, the girls gymnastics team managed to place second at Districts and narrowly missed qualifying for State as a team. People were skeptical about the Norse football team's ability to extend their season to the state semi-finals. They did that and more! The opposition only served to strengthen Norse determination. On a Saturday afternoon, the Norse easily shut out Arvada 21-0 and captured the 4A state title.

Win or lose, every individual's Norse pride shone through. It was that pride and spirit which composed a year's worth of events in the continuing Nordic Saga.

Whether spiking for the game-winning point or pushing for a spot on the Varsity football squad, the Norse manifested their destiny when soccer coach Razan brought home the 4A state soccer championship.

What a better way to leave the coaching profession than with a state title? These were the thoughts of Coach Dominic Capra as he shocked the community with his resignation on February 8, after six years of coaching experience.

The scoreboard at the Arapahoe Invitational displays the great achievements of Northglenn runners, holding three out of four records. At Arapahoe, Northglenn placed first, second, fourth, and fifth in the boys "B" race, girls varsity, boys varsity, and the boys "C" race, respectively.

With the pride of a state championship still fresh in their minds, Captains Bill Coleman and Steve Brotzman present the first Norse football state championship trophy to beaming Principal George McCulloch. Bill and Steve had an extra honor as they were awarded the title of All-State players for their excellent performance throughout the season.

A confident smile from Head Coach Dominic Capra lets his team know he always has faith in their undying spirit. In his seventh year as coach, Capra was announced "Coach of the Year" for leading his team to the state championship by both the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Post (and Nordic Times and Nordic Saga and . . .)

An age old fairytale of dreams, high hopes, and victories come to life, As the Norse Tame the Front Range, Then STATE!!!

"Expect the Unexpected," and "A Cinderella Team Shines," read the headlines after the Norse victory against Arvada. With a record of 2 and 4 in the first six weeks, the most devastating loss had been against Thornton at Northglenn's Home coming; Northglenn's football team looked as if they were headed for a crash. But before the next game, which was to be Westy, Head Coach Dominic Capra predicted his team "will not continue to lose" and even though this team was the youngest and most inexperienced in years, their talent surfaced and they did not lose another game. Northglenn reached the playoffs, then the quarterfinals, then the semifinals, and then the state game!

There was not one time when these men were forced to win, but one by one, their opponents were knocked off, which brought them to the "big one" with Arvada. One sports editor went as far as to state, "the Redskins will win, the Norsemen don't have a prayer." Much to the consternation of that local sports writer, Northglenn took it all. "Give them credit, Northglenn is a good team," said a player for Arvada. But nobody could have said it better than Capra, "I have nothing but respect for this team."

COMMENTARY: "I just don't think these guys know what giving up means."

A look of reassurance between offensive players, Mike Davidson, Brad Peters, and George Kelley, proves effective on the field. A close knit team led the Norse to the most successful season ever and an 11-4 finish.

Doing their own thing in their own way without a crowd, Golf, JV Football Still Excelled in Norse Style

Unsung heroes or just Norse doing their own thing? It made no difference whether crowds were watching or not, whether trophies were won or not. Learning the skills, doing one's best . . . both golf and JV football wrote their own tale

After a tough season, the JV football team ended with three wins and four losses. Small compared to the previous year's team, many players had put in a lot of time on the varsity team and therefore left the junior varsity a bit on the unexperienced side. This young football team learned early what it felt like to win as well as what it felt like to lose

Though the golf team was small, Coach Richard Hatch molded the team into a group of good players. They ranked third in districts and narrowly missed qualifying for state by eight strokes. One member, junior Mike Gergurich, played in the state tournament.

A coach may tumble, but Gymnasts Revive

The Lady Norse began their season with the odds stacked against them, and their situation did not improve much when they were forced to change coaches in mid-season due to ruling by the Colorado High School Activities Association. However, they remained optimistic and showed a great deal of Norse determination and put out a great season with four wins and two losses. New Head Coach Robert Smith, replacing Tom Yokoy, took the girls from a seventh place finish at the Broomfield Invitational to a fourth place in the League meet, missing a second place position by only 1.5 points. They narrowly lost the third place position by a fraction of a point to arch-rival Thornton, who couldn't resist rubbing things in. However, the Lady Norse came back and turned the tables on everyone one week later at the District meet by placing second with a season high score of 151.25. Coach Smith showed his enthusiasm for their feat by turning a back flip when the scores were announced.

COMMENTARY: "An unsung Northglenn High School gymnastics squad got healthy toward the end of the season and came on strong to finish second at the District Championship."

Cindy Derr receives a word of advice from the ever-resourceful coach. Gymnastics not only involves superior control, but also an understanding of the physics of tumbling.

Sophomore Cheryl Hogan receives a tape job from the coach before attempting to do a floor exercise routine. Proper support of joints is critical due to the amount of extreme pressure on these areas.

As Natalie McKeever begins her uneven bar routine, Sheila Ennis pulls the spring board out of the way. Though gymnastics is a very individualistic sport, team work plays an important role in mental support and injury prevention.

Secure placement of the mats in preparation for a dismount from the balance beam is provided by team mates Andrea Molliconi and Sundae Barnett.

Reports from the coach prior to competition give the extra edge over opponents. Coach Robert Smith, an alumnus of 1982 and a former Norse gymnast, took over due to the new CHSAA ruling and the subsequent loss of former Head Coach Tom Yokooji.

The clipboard tells only half the story of the success of the Norse cross-country runners as Coach Amato confers with his ever-present and ever-supporting Principal George McCulloch. Amato left in early January to be a exchange teacher in Australia leaving behind state and district championship records which will be a challenge for his replacement.

A Liberty Bell Invitational win is accepted by Matt Walsh from a host Heritage High School cheerleader. A junior, Matt followed his sister Diane ('84) in the family tradition of being a Norse champion runner.

The 1984 teams were faced with a difficult task of maintaining the status achieved by the prior Cross Country teams. Nevertheless, they proved themselves a quality team. Both the girls teams took firsts and seconds throughout the season with an exception of one third place. Plus, the boys "B" and "C" team equaled the girls record. In a little tougher field, the boys varsity also excelled with many first and third placings. After long and painful hours of practice, the season was coming to an end. The day of Districts arrived with emotions running high. The girls had never lost a District meet and had won six consecutive titles, and the boys had won ten straight.

The day was total chaos. Due to a slip by the third runner and then the first and second runner going the wrong direction on Northglenn lost its lead. Their valiant effort to get their position back was only good enough to bring the team to third place. The girls added the seventh District win to their record and with only six girls instead of the normal seven. The girls entered the State meet and, with an outstanding performance, finished second in State.

Running to a first place finish in the sophomore league meet, Kjell Wangaard proves that he has what it takes to be at the top.

Up and back with power and strength sets Sue Gillette in the perfect position for an unreturnable serve. Sue a senior made the All State team for the second year in a row.

Lady Norse Highlight the Season with State Fourth

As the season started out, Coach Kitty Fowler stated, "This year's volleyball team is the strongest in seven years," which their season proved true. As they competed in one of the toughest leagues in the state, they were a favorite among Poudre and Fort Collins. A few of the highlights of the season came when they had beaten Fort Collins twice and Poudre in Sub-Districts. Northglenn moved into the state finals with a decisive win over Doherty. The Lady Norse had advanced to the final four but when they faced Evergreen the defending state champs, nervousness seemed to be the Norse's downfall. Northglenn had to settle for a fourth place finish in state.

COMMENTARY: Northglenn has the team to make it to state for the third time in the last four years.

Lou Torres Sentinel

Ready and waiting is the call used by the Lady Norse when facing tough opponents in the state tournament. The ladies rose to a successful season finish with an 18-8 record.

A block from high above by Amy Hulstrom proves the theory that everything that goes up must come down. Amy was not only active in sports but was enrolled in Student Government holding the office of Head Girl.

A popular award at Northglenn, the Dr. Pepper MVP is awarded to Amy Hulstrom at one of many sports assemblies. Amy, a senior, lettered in three varsity sports in her high school years.

The Norse are relieved as Johnna Capra saves the ball from going out of bounce. Working together and cooperative team work gave Norse a slight edge over their opponents.

Inexperience the name of the game for tennis, JV and soph volleyball although Minor in Crowd Attraction, But Major In Effort

Though these three young inexperienced teams all started out with a slow season, they put out their best effort for a strong comeback toward the end of the season. With no more experience than they had, Coach Knecht developed the sophomore volleyball team into a group of talented players and ended with a very good season. Winding things up with a 12-7 record and a first place finish at the Cherry Creek Tournament, the members were very enthusiastic and showed a great deal of promise. Though the JV team consisted of sophomores and a single junior, they did not win as many games as the sophomores, yet they did try their hardest. This was a great accomplishment considering there was tougher competition for the JV team. Coach Temple commented, "For such a young team, they have improved a great deal." The boy's tennis team lost several experienced players but gained much new talent. With such new blood comes problems and Coach, Dennis Geraghty stated that the team "is doing as expected." They reached their season finale with 3 wins and 4 losses, holding closely to Coach Geraghty's prediction of an evenly split season.

COMMENTARY: Although there are only eleven boy's tennis team members and the team has nine new members, they are doing a great job.

The Girls Swimming and Diving team, under the coaching of Ken Ebuna, had a slow season beginning but improved steadily throughout the season, reaching their peak at the League Championship, where they captured a third place position. Both Mary Loehr and Elaine Strickland made All Conference. Elaine went on to compete in the state championship where she placed eleventh in the Butterfly and thirteenth in the 200 Individual Medley. Tricia O'Donnel, a 1976 graduate of Northglenn and an exceptional swimmer and diver herself, came to Northglenn to coach the diving team. She enthusiastically stated, "The girls have improved so much that it is incredible."

COMMENTARY: The team has proven that they have the quality to win.

After years of struggle, Northglenn's total program produces 84 STATE CHAMPIONS!!!!

The Northglenn High School boys soccer team finally won what had long been awaiting them, the State Championship. For years, Northglenn has produced excellent soccer teams with Coach Ata Razani at the heart of the program. As one news reporter wrote, "The Norse are the class of the area when it comes to soccer." The team started their season with some of the toughest opponents in the state, but game after game Northglenn prevailed never letting the opposing team score high. But that was how they played their game, not high scoring but by being control oriented. They went the season undefeated. "The state's winningest team of the 1980's has yet to win a state boys soccer title. Our attitude is positive," said Razani. And as other team members stated, "We know we're good and we knew we were going to take state before we even started the season."

COMMENTARY: "This has been the best team I've ever had."

A tug-of-war for the soccer state championship trophy takes place between Principal McCulloch and Co-Captain Brien Hodges as Loren Shook acts as referee. After a season of 19 and 0, the boys finally captured the award.

All-State abilities are shown as senior Loren Shook beats a Fairview opponent to the ball. All season Loren kept the team pumping by scoring 14 goals, a team high.

With pride, Principal McCulloch looks on as his boys beat the opponent Fairview, 2-1 for the state title. The problem of an overcrowded trophy case faced McCulloch, however.

Earned high above his players shoulders, Coach Ata Razani takes his place where he belongs-above the rest! After many near misses, Raz finally holds the trophy that had consistently evaded him.

Super Soph Jody Lucero keeps her eyes on the ball to make a proper trap as Michelle Cirbo comes in for backup. Jody took the state by surprise by leading the Lady Norse in goals ending the season with an incredible 24 goals.

A sacrifice of body by Tina Davidson for the ball not only comes during the game but in warm-ups to prepare her both mentally and physically for any opponent. The Lady Norse knew the true meaning of sacrifice as they forgot all others to practice long hours and earn an undefeated league record.

The skill of dribbling under control is mastered by junior Michelle Cirbo in a pre-game warm-up at the quarter final game against Coronado. The Norse defeated Coronado in a game of skill 2-1 allowing them to advance to the semi-final game against Arapahoe.

Turn and dribble offense proves effective for Tina Davidson and the entire '84 championship team. Tina, a junior, and returning from the '84 teams, knew what it would take to make it through the state play-offs.

Set Goals For Ladies

What a year this was for Northglenn's soccer coach Ata Razani. Not only did he guide his boys to a state title and his girls to an admirable record, but he was named Coach of the Year by the Colorado High School Activities Association. "I didn't expect it because there are so many excellent coaches out there," Raz said. He was too busy working on State Championship number five overall with his girls team, that he didn't imagine a disappointment like the loss of semi-final game to Arapahoe 1-0. They started on a down note losing the first game to Cherry Creek 2-1, but hopped back into form to win all league games. The high scoring offense was led by super soph Jodi Lucero with 24 goals. The defense showed outstanding seniors Bobbie Geist, Sherri Martinez and Lisa Bruder Young, but experienced, the girls proved once again this year they were one of the best teams in the State

Boys JV Play 4-4

For many years now, the JV boys and girls soccer teams have been living in the shadow of the varsity powerhouse champions. Still, they were determined teams which gave them winning seasons. With all the emphasis on the varsity programs and many of the JV players being used on occasion to play in the varsity games, Coach Drotar remained optimistic about the play of his teams. Controversial suspension and a 2-4 beginning, but Norse Prove To Be A Contender At 12-8

Starting the season with a dismal 2-4 record, the Varsity boys heated up to contend for top billing in the tough Front Range League. The team finished just one game short of the playoffs with a record of 12-8 overall. Seniors Marty Riddle and Brian Dingwall, two of the guards, complemented each other nicely. Marty was the sparkplug of the team, averaging 17 points per game, while Brian played excellent defense on usually taller foes. The three other starters, seniors Lee Majerus, Brian Egan, and Brad Peters, each had at least one year of varsity experience coming into the season. Senior Shay Geisler and David Daniels excelled coming off the bench to add excitement to the already intriguing games. With tremendous fan support, the team came back from many large deficits to pull out the victory.

A 14-6 season or loss to Thornton does not tell the tale, as Lady Norse A Class Act

With so much experience coming into the season, the varsity girls had high expectations put upon them, but they fell short, not even making the playoffs. All five starters had played varsity previously. Sue Gillette, Amy Hulstrom, and Anne Ralph were starters since their sophomore year. Ruth Morse and Brandi Link became starters this year, proving last season they could play. With all that talent, many were shocked when the team failed to make the playoffs for the first time in four years. But even so, the girls had a successful season with 14 wins and 6 losses. The sixth loss came at the hands of cross-town rival Thornton, a heartbreaking game with the final margin of one point ending a season of very high hopes.

Pinning hopes for state Wrestlers Challenge All

The boys wrestling team had to overcome a tough obstacle this season, adjusting to a new head coach. But the transition didn't seem to bother them. Taken over by Bill Komloske, the team shaped up to be well-rounded and disciplined. Winning 7 out of their 9 meets, the team had many outstanding wrestlers on the varsity squad. Four went on to compete in the State Tournament: Shane Torres, Steve Geitzenauer, Brian Madrid, and Bill Coleman. Bill, the team captain and an excellent wrestler in the heavyweight class, finished off an 18-4 season by placing 3rd in State. Brian was ineligible for the first part of the season, but stormed through the last part to finish 2nd in the State Tournament.

Powerful legs and a good grip prevent Gary Rivale from being thrown on the mat. Gary's sure feet eventually helped him win the match. (Photo by Doug Keeler)

All bed up in knots, Shane Torres struggles to keep from being pinned. Wrestling at 98 lbs., Shane went on to compete in the State Tournament.

Making sure his man doesn't get away, Kelly Trujillo sits on top of his Poudre opponent and keeps a tight grip. In his sophomore debut, Kelly proved he could wrestle on the varsity level.

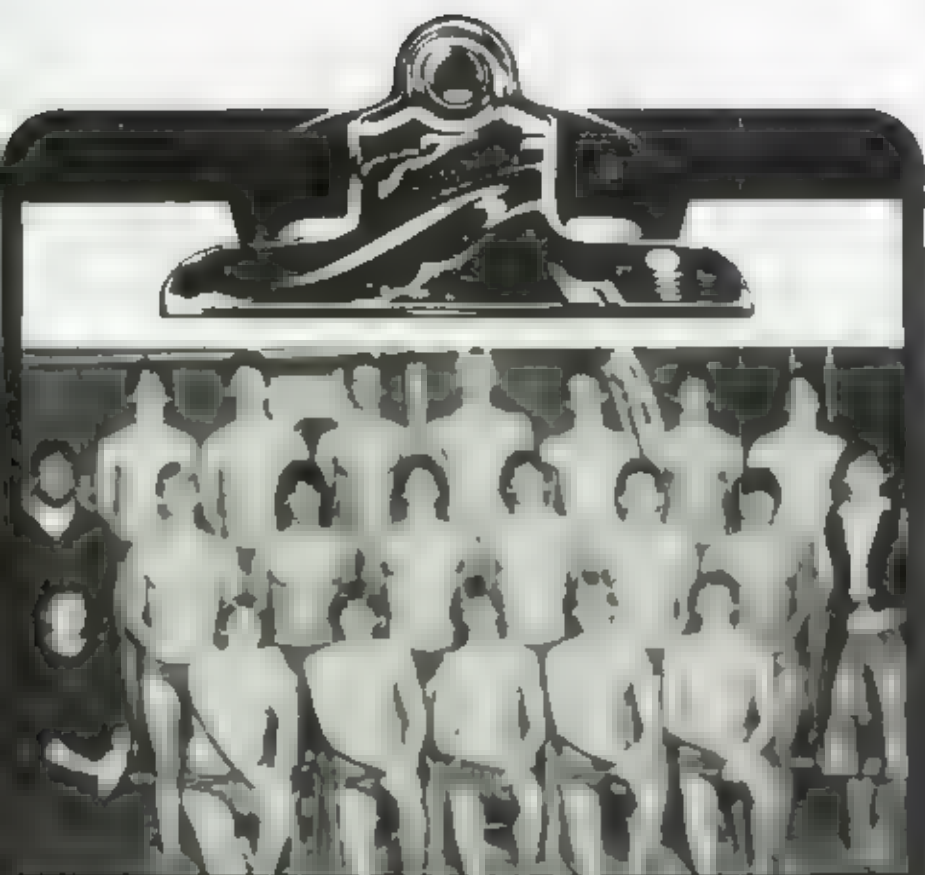

Geving takes state first, 400 relay takes third as Boys Swim to 6th Place State Finish!!!!

Swimming with the greatest of ease, the boys swimming team capped off a great year by placing 6th in the State Tournament. Well balanced and experienced, the team didn't lose a league meet all year and ended the regular season by capturing 1st place at the League Championships. Having eight swimmers qualify for state, the team had an excellent chance to finish in the top three. But due to disciplinary problems, two swimmers were dismissed. However, that didn't dampen the spirits of the team, especially jr. Steve Geving. Having an outstanding season all year, Steve finished it off by taking 1st in the 50 yd. freestyle and 2nd in the 100 yd. freestyle, missing 1st by only .06 seconds at the State Meet. "We knew Steve had a chance to win the 50 and the 100. We knew it would be close," Coach Ebuna later commented. Also placing at State was the team of Geving, Scot Sherick, Tom Lachermeyer, and Greg Clay swimming in the 400 yd. freestyle. Finishing third, the foursome put forth their fastest time to the season.

A smirky grin comes across the face of jr. Steve Geving as he gets a chance to show off his state gold medal for the 50 yd. freestyle. Steve swam his fastest time ever of 21.55 sec.

A wild look in the eyes of Tom Lachermeier, Rob Culp, and Paul Sibley tells the crowd "This is the State finals!" Tom graduated this year, but Rob and Paul will be back next season ready for State again.

Anxiety is running high for Scott Sherick, Tom Lachermeier, Greg Clay, and Steve Geving as the beginning of the finals for the 400 yd. freestyle at the State Meet is drawing near. The foursome placed 3rd swimming their fastest times ever crashing the old school record by 3 seconds.

Flying 'round and 'round, judges failed to shoot them down, as Boys Swing High Bar To State

The boys gymnastics team had one of its largest participation records in its history. 47 people come out to compete. Despite its huge size and scoring potential, the team never competed full force at any meet due to the plague of injuries and illnesses.

Captain Steve Dahmer, a junior, was forced to sit out the first three meets of the season because of torn ligaments and a severely bruised pelvis. All around and Co-Captain Barry Sherman was hindered by a nagging shoulder injury during most of the season. Senior Darrell Farr was disabled by a pulled hamstring late in the season, but not before he became the Front Range League vaulting Champion and had dominated the vault in nearly every dual meet. Despite these misfortunes, the team enjoyed a successful season.

Steve Dahmer returned to beat a long-standing school record on the floor exercise by scoring 8.8 at the Front Range League meet, which also earned him a 4th place spot in the toughest league in the state. He also made the State All Conference and All District team along with Darrell Farr who scored 8.95 on the vault. Strong competitors like Phil Carney and Roger Dilts on high bar, Darrell Farr on vault, and Steve Dahmer on parallel bars, made it to the state competition, and once again made the Norse proud.

Commentary: "We don't have a shining star, but we do have a lot of strong competitors."

Head Coach Robert Smith

The tongue in cheek approach obviously helps junior Chris Carney execute double leg circles on the pommel horse. His talent on both the horse and parallel bars allowed him to hold his position on the varsity squad during the entire season.

An Iron Cross may look simple, but only if performed by a good gymnast in top physical shape, such as junior Troy Burran. Troy's form and scoring abilities were great aids to the overall team effort, especially on the traditionally weak events, the rings.

It is generally agreed upon by all gymnasts that the pommel horse is the most difficult piece of equipment to work. However, this fact did not slow sophomore Dirk Wood down a bit as he quickly mastered its unique problems and was promoted to the varsity squad.

A one-handed handstand, as performed prior to the District meet by junior Steve Dahmer, is the ultimate in strength, balance, and timing. Steve qualified for State on the pommel horse and parallel bars that night, but suffered a heartbreaking defeat on the floor exercise.

Placement of the hands behind the back and short paced steps during a game are typical actions of an excited, well trained coach like Ken Stevens. A baseball coach for many years, Mr Stevens has always maintained his teams, while keeping them happy with high scoring seasons

The age old saying of "practice makes perfect" rings through the mind of Norse baseball great Jim Nawrocki. Playing the nerve position of the game, the pitcher, Jim not only warms up before the game, but even during the innings

The dug-out, a place where dreams are made and nerves are shattered, serves up a vision of a possible state title to awaiting hitters. Covering his eyes and taking a break, Derrick Horst contemplates the basic essentials necessary to survive in his position, third base, including eye and hand coordination and speed

Off to a slow start, but finishing a tough schedule, Norse Finish 6-9-1

Batting practice started a little too early for the Boys Varsity Baseball team in spring of '85. Off to a slow start, but finishing a tough schedule with a 6-9-1 record, the team was plagued by errors which made the difference in close games between a win and a loss. By minimizing those errors and adding the leadership of such seniors as Steve Brotzman, Marty Riddle, Fred Martinez, and Cary Green, the game improved immensely and gave them a shot at the state playoffs. The pitching at times looked promising with the senior, junior, sophomore combination of Jim Nawrocki, Jim Parks, and Kent Baker. With nine juniors playing on the varsity squad, the '86 team potential looked fantastic.

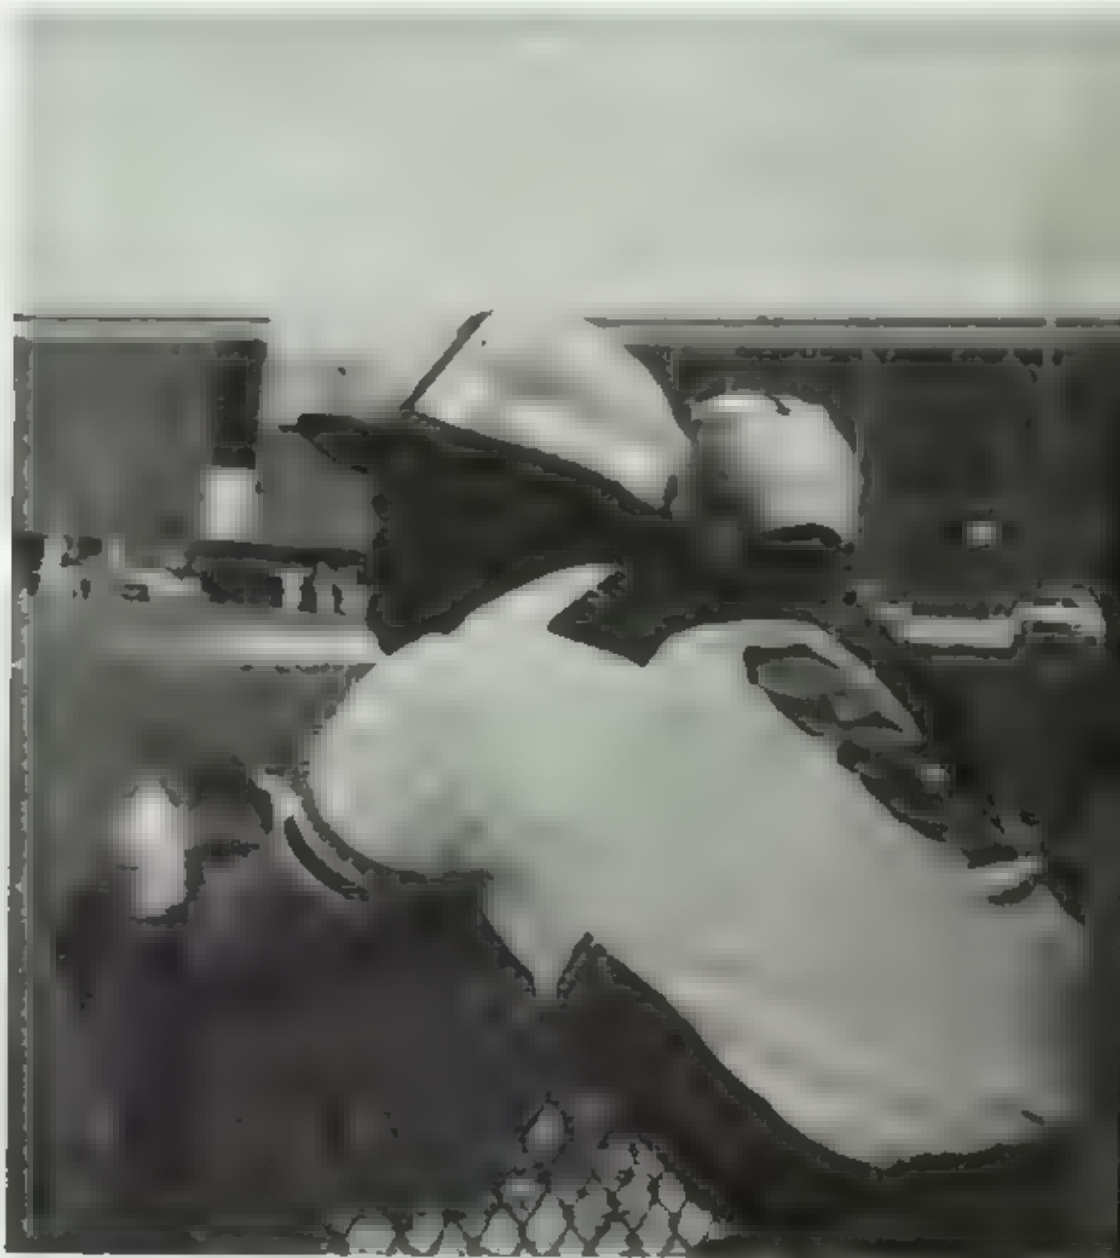

Commentary: "The team has shown some improvement but they are still striving for the state playoffs. The Team has a good chance in the playoffs. Our current records is three wins and six loses. If we can win our next three games, we'll go into the play-offs on a positive note. The team has a strong ability to hit the pitching and the defense are a little spotty." The anticipation mounts as junior George Kelley waits in the dug-out, for his turn at bat. After a vigorous season in football George rested in the winter so by spring he would be a top notch baseball performer the dedication of a true Norse Athlete.

Small crowds could have had an effect on any other school team, but not on that of a Norse Tennis and JV and sophomore baseball teams proved this idea true as they struggled to meet Norse standards with a tremendous amount of spirit and commitment. Coach Rettel led the JV baseball team to a victory in the Range League Championship. The sophomore baseball team displayed excellent hitting and fielding, running a streak of 7 wins and ending the season with a record of 8-3. The tennis team also displayed a large amount of skill seeing that their season totals were 6 wins and 3 losses. Thus, with or without the support of peers, a Norse has a commitment to excellence

To compete on a high school girls track team, skills and knowledge were important. The '85 girls team had those mastered early in the season. Practice over the years Sends Norse To State

Many think the skills required to compete in track are natural given talents. But as with any sport, the time required for training is often the equivalent of many years. Sportsmen begin training years in advance, doing such things as everyday runs and constant calisthenics. Such dedicated athletes are the pure examples of the members of the boys track team. Many of the team members had been competing in these grueling events since way back in elementary days. Common stereotypes of this model are track members Ramon Duran, Bill Coleman, Brian Dingwall, Clayton Faust, and Bryan Parr, who all had the will to succeed and made it to the state track competition. The boys track team strove for perfection at each meet, and often was able to get the crowds roaring with joy and pride at the Norse success.

Commentary: "We are improving week by week." - Nordic Times

Truly the most grueling and demanding track and field events are the long distance runs. True track enthusiasts, Scott Dragoo and Eric Morganstern always put forth their most when running, not only for the pride of the school but for the feel of personal achievement.

Strength is not the only thing that weightmen need to throw shot and disc; there is a special technique which takes lots of practice to finally make it to that final "umph." Awesome power throws, which Bill Coleman along with the rest of the boy's team had, was what it took to place in the meets.

In the relays, making the handoffs as quick and as precise as possible is important when the teams are neck and neck. Combined with strong finishes by Clayton Faust and Lee Majerus, the relay teams were able to pull through to good finishes throughout the season.

Many distance runners found that using a lead runner to pull them around is the way to conquer the 1600 and 800 meter runs. One man at a time and one step at a time, the junior distance runner Matt Walsh ran his race.

Chapter III

As high scores and standards prevail,

Norse Prove Academic Success

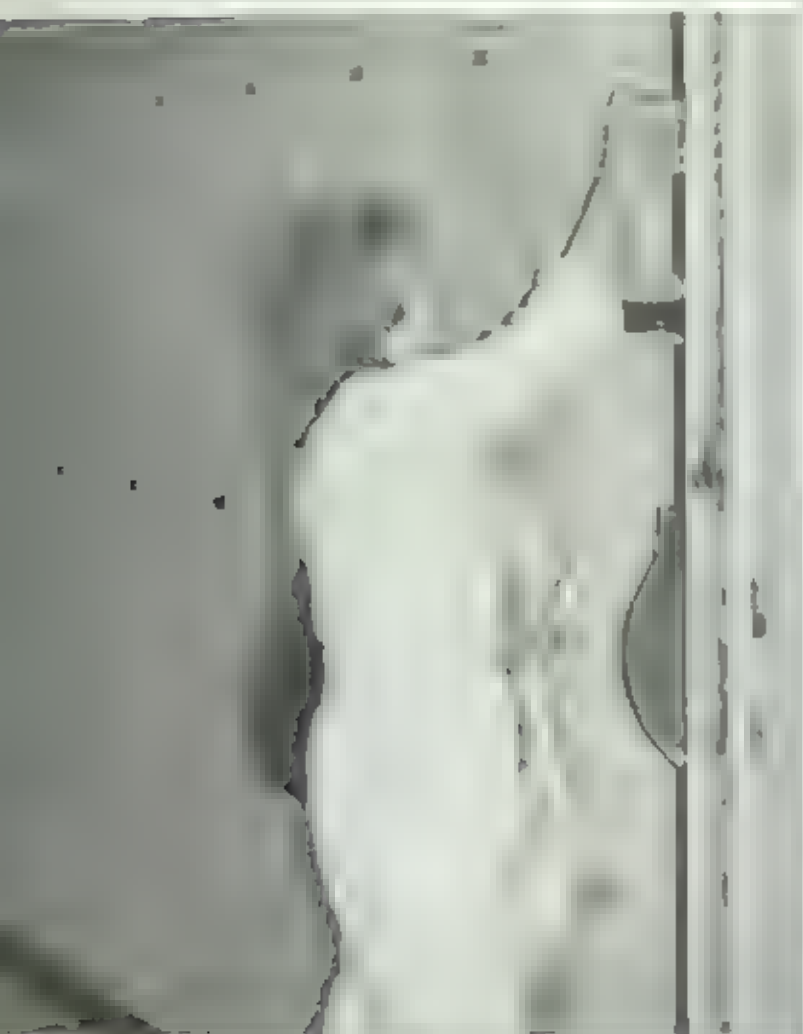

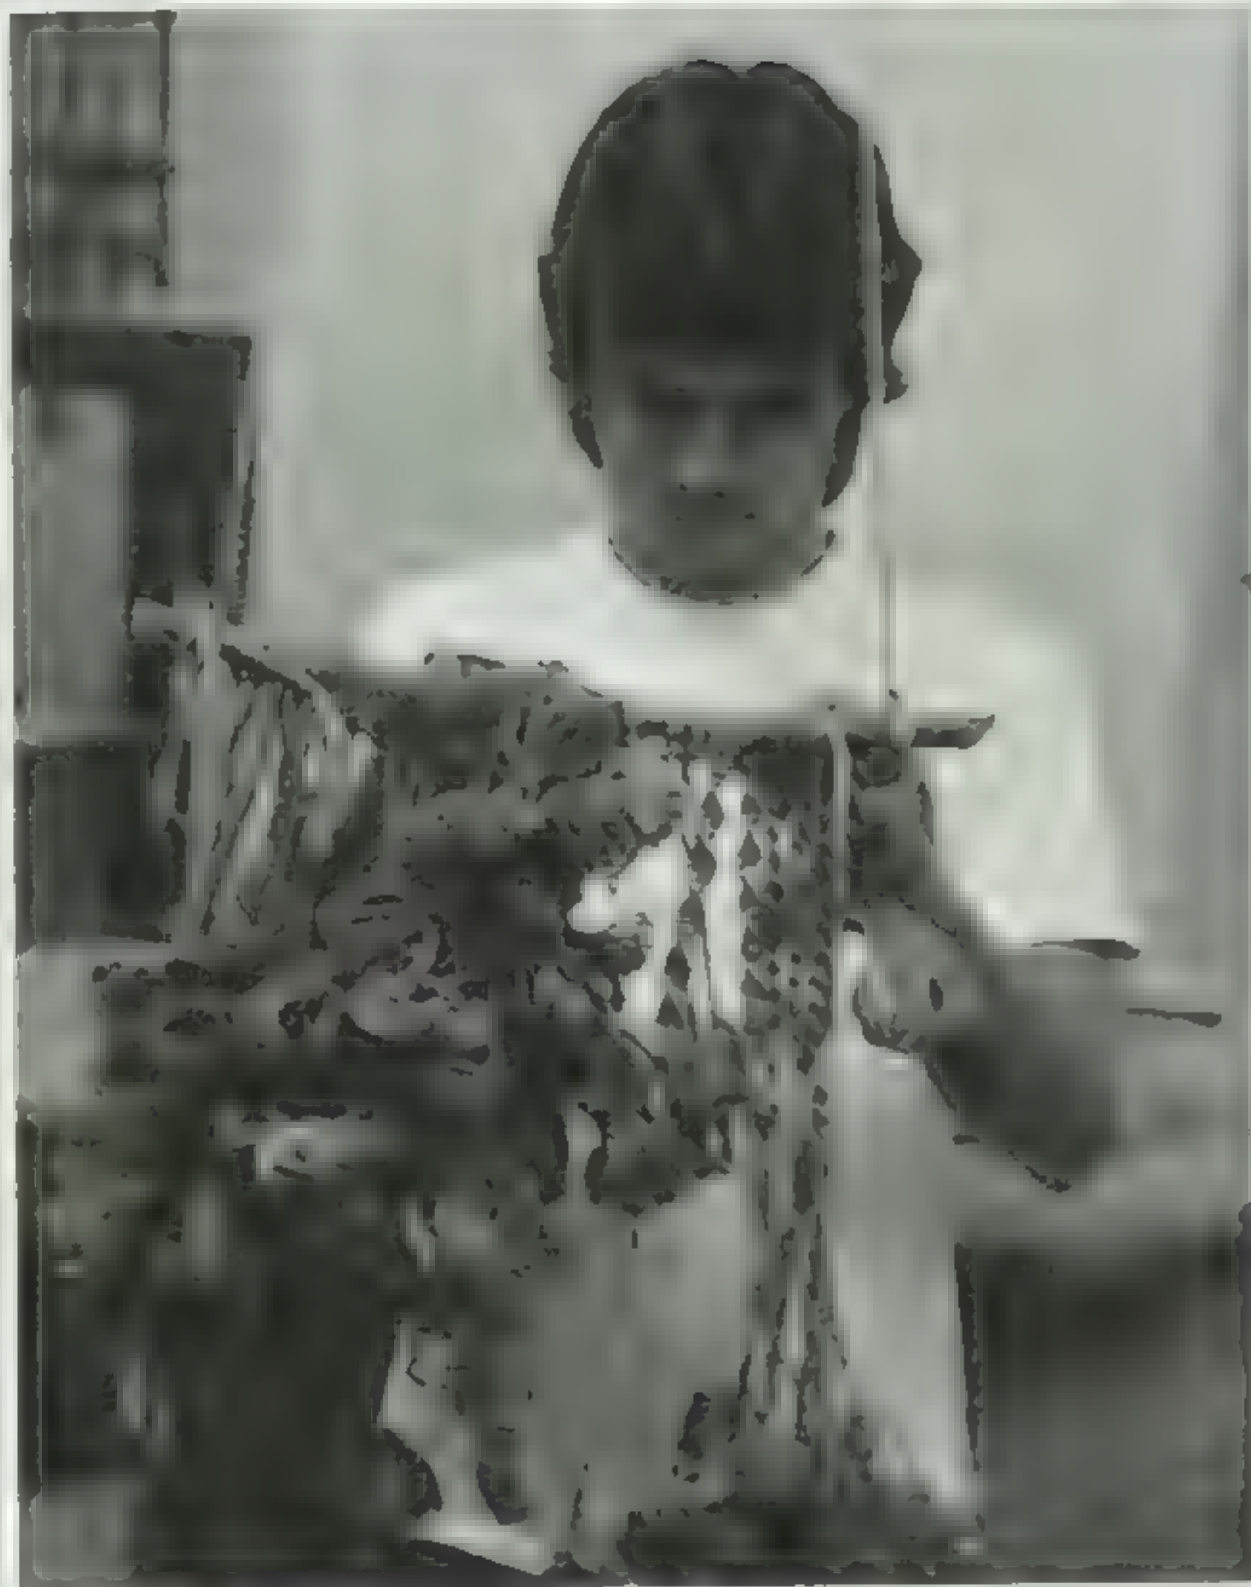

Placed high above the athletics, clubs, and activities, was the NGHS academic policy. Academic pride shine through the high ACT/SAT scores, the percentage of students attending college, and the general academic attitudes of the students. A presentation by the A-Team early in the year made students realize the need to take hold of their lives. Students at the assembly were told that the clock was ticking and the time to take charge of their lives was now. Suddenly students began to realize that the opportunity for a great education was right in front of them and all they had to do was reach out and grab it.

"What a tangled web we weave" is on the mind of many students like Mike Barbour involved in the fibers class. The class gave students skills which they could apply to career goals later in life.

With a hall pass in hand, senior Renee Dolph looks through her locker for an assignment. In order to keep the halls less crowded and noisy during class hours, a hall pass was required during school hours.

The act of appealing absences is discovered by senior Kelly Kingry as he waits in the Student Relations Office for a dean. The school's attendance policy was designed to comply with state regulations and parent student opinions.

About to receive a blood test at the Wellness Week, senior Shelly Caudillo closes her eyes as Brett Portlock approaches her with the razor pick. Wellness Week gave an educational advantage to all those who participated as students learned about their own personal health and how to judge the health of others.

A bright smile flashes across the face of substitute teacher Lynn Marshall as she types assignments in the AV Room. Ms. Marshall was a familiar face around the classrooms of NGHS as she filled in for many teachers who couldn't make it in to teach.

Since the Norse academic policy provides flexibility, Students Earn College Credit

The policy that comes to mind when telling the story of the academic Norse is the commitment to do one's best. While a student's grade level often depended solely upon test scores, scholars and instructors of Northglenn regarded skill levels achieved from trying one's best, a different approach compared to other programs. Students were able to excel in fields which interested them, yet continue to obtain proficient skills in other areas designed to prepare them for the future.

The idea that people learn from their mistakes was taken into consideration for students who had trouble accepting concepts in the beginning of a course but picked them up later. The policy also continued to recognize students who wished to prepare for college by taking more difficult courses which demanded more time and effort. Thus, the academic policy at Northglenn was indeed a system which satisfied both the needs of students and their "Commitment to Excellence."

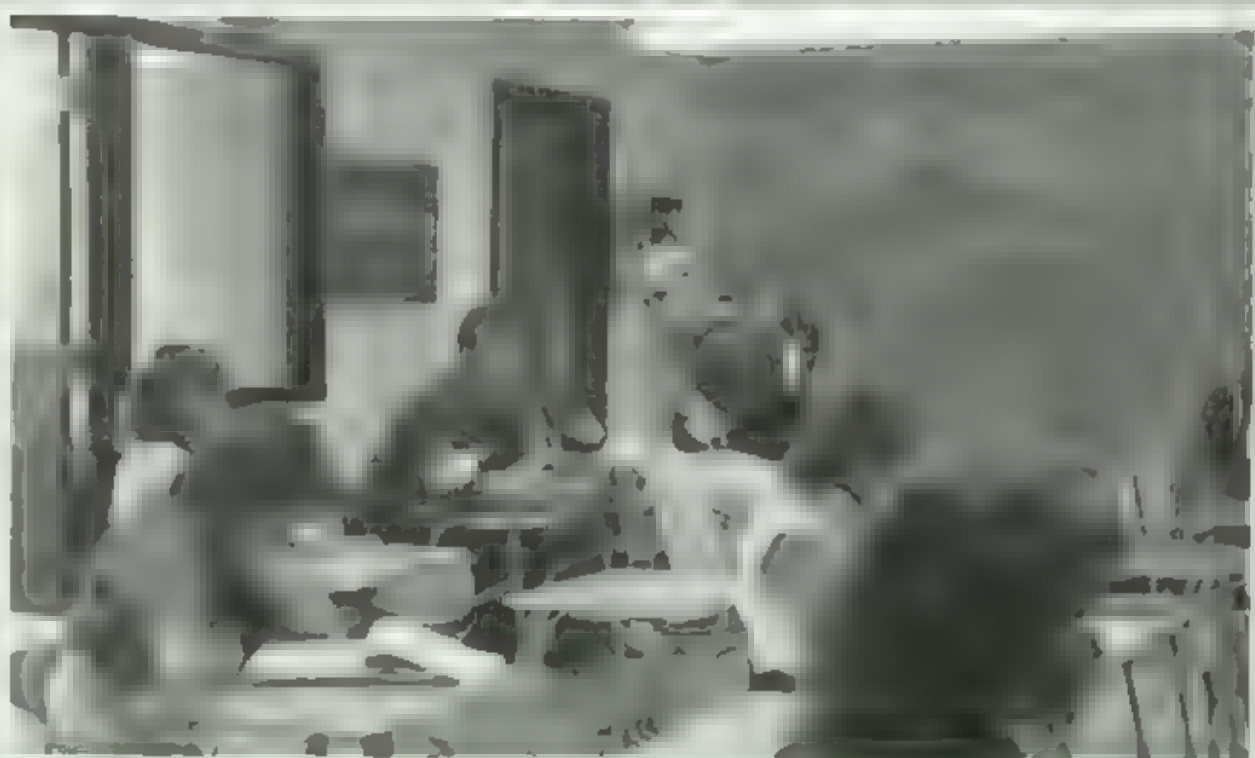

Passes aren't easily obtained as Lavonne Overholt discovers as she asks for one from Mr. Atcheson to go to her locker. Instructors and administrators felt students shouldn't lose out on classtime, thus the cause of tighter grips on passes.

The one behind the Academic Policy is the one who can usually be found hard at work behind the desk. Linda Iepsen was the academic director planning academically for the school.

The first year of teaching is a difficult task, however, Susan Thompson finds it enjoyable, as one can see, as she takes time out to have some fun. Mrs. Thompson taught English classes such as Interpersonal Communication and Conflicts in Literature.

Seniors Bill Coleman and Brian Egan take time out to talk in Mrs. Casey's Future Studies class. Future Studies provided students with a chance to explore ideas about academics of the future.

Sophomores Marc Grabowski and Shawn Kosmicki carefully observe the screen while in Mr. Eduna's Computer Math class. The twosome were known for their skills in working with computers.

Physics provides students with a chance to try out their knowledge of motion by building a miniature car. Many of the ideas studied in the classroom were applied by experiments such as these throughout the year.

While speaking with Barb McCarthy, foreign language instructors Julie Bohlender and Carol Bates express concern as they discuss the UN Potluck Dinner. Cooperation between teachers was a major part of the academic policy at Northglenn.

Hard work shines through in award winning essays but

Writing Papers Causes Headaches

Tension and fear mount as IT approaches. IT has been chasing students for what seems like days, actually it's been weeks. This thing has been known to strike fear into students around the world. Though students have tried, unsuccessfully, throughout the years to put an end to this terrible thing which exist in their dearest night mares, there is no stopping the dreaded and fearful — DEADLINE!

Unfortunately, with the likes of Allen, Schweissing, and Gorce existing, the loathed and despised PAPER DEADLINE will most likely persevere until the end of time. The most ironic and strong thing about IT, though, is no one person really knows truly the reason for the existence of the PAPER DEADLINE. or as a matter of fact, does anybody know why teachers assign such assignments as (the squeamish should not read the next word) PAPERS!

Teachers, and students, such as Brian Espinoza, will say the reason for such assignments is "to test your present writing ability and improve your inefficient abilities." Now, does anyone out there think Brian is serious? Of course not; Melissa Olinger has probably the most accurate reason. She believes teachers assign PAPERS with strict deadlines merely to "bask in our desperation."

It is easy to see inside a teacher's thoughts as he assigns a PAPER, the laughs, the jeers, lack of sympathy. It's just terrible. Everyone knows as Kelly Gonzales so aptly states, that teachers, "assume students only have that one class in stead of six others."

There is, however, a way to go about getting rid of the pressures of the dreaded PAPER DEADLINE! This method is a very simple one. Anybody can do it. The method is simply . . . start the day it is assigned! Contrary to popular belief, reading the material and research also work greatly to your advantage. Even with these other precautions, however, it is impossible to escape the dreaded PAPER DEADLINE! It is out there! BEWARE!

With the help of Ms. Lauffer papers won't be so confusing and frustrating. Ms. Lauffer helped many students struggle in the past years and finish the class, World Affairs, with SUCCESS.

With the only thing to look forward to being an enormous stack of books, Jeff Bernatow takes one look and knows he won't be going out Saturday night. To get through the advanced and college prep classes, many weekends were sacrificed in order to write and rewrite those last minute papers.

The study of award winning yearbooks helps Steve Gunn create new ideas for the 1985 Nordic Saga. Steve was a hard worker and an excellent second year journalism student.

With his hat tipped down, Andy Feuerborn pretends to be studying when actually he is wr.ing notes. Little does he know Mrs. Pech wasn't easily fooled.

Taking a minute to glance up, Becky Lenhart shoots a look of relief. Seniors and sophomores relaxed at home while the juniors attended school to take the annual CTBS tests.

Kicking back, Amy Willard gets a start on her art report. The headset seemed to bring out Amy's artistic thoughts.

The mandatory half credit in science for graduation keeps Biology students busy at work. Biology offered students a chance to learn about their environment.

The Library Resource Center provides many books for entire classes to use.

When colleges demand the above-average student, The CP and AP Classes Deliver As Expected

Although academics weren't at the top of the list to some students, they were considered to be the most important in regard to one's future by others. Grades and academics were needed in order for one to pursue an academic life after high school. There was a wide variety of higher level classes offered at Northglenn. Students had the opportunity to take either class at an average level or the same class at an advanced level. For instance, juniors had their choice of Advanced Placement American History or American History. Advanced Placement required more work and thought, but to some it was highly worth the extra effort. Eventually, after taking an AP course, an AP test was available (at a cost) to earn possible college credits.

College Preparatory classes, popular among Northglenn students, were also available to better one's education. Taught by various teachers such as Mrs. Sanko, Mr. Gorce, and Mr. LeMieux, the classes were taught as if they were actual college classes. Seniors, juniors, and a few sophomores found out what college life will have to offer as they crammed into CU's Norlin Library to finish the rigorous assignments presented in each class.

Most AP and CP classes were "weighted," meaning there was more work and the activities were harder. Yet, since they were weighted, the classes were worth more credit, meaning a higher grade point average. This system proved to be a tremendous help among students planning to go on to college and students trying to gain scholarships.

Hard at work. Phil Carney reads during his Expository Writing Class. Good study habits were necessary for success in academics.

Not wasting time, students diligently work to finish their assignments. Completing work in class avoided the dreaded fear of having homework.

Former Nurse Karen Lewis provides the knowledge and wisdom to show Karen Marshall the ropes of being a senior.

In an attempt to amaze and astound his students, Mr. Zeman performs an experiment. Mr. Zeman taught both physics and AP Physics.

The Library/Media Center fills with research students almost every hour as they struggle to finish homework. Many teachers used the library for extra "help" in teaching their students.

A scene at sundown is captured at the Speak Retreat in Estes Park. Student Council members spent three days at the retreat planning the year's activities.

Music to listen to while reading is the only way for David Peterson to study. To add to the relaxation relaxation, he used Mr. Mavrogianes' couch.

The new Burger King on 104th and Federal is the place to go because of the specials for Northglenn students. This restaurant had a grand opening in the fall of 1984.

The shoes Robyn Saunders is looking for must be in the right style. Two of the styles that were popular were jellies and flats, but the everpopular Nike's still outclassed all.

Off the beaten track of everyday school life,

Norse Enjoy Learning Activities Outside Classroom

Off campus activities played a big part of high school life. Some of the activities were class field trips; others were individual ventures. But they all helped make up the 84-85 school year.

One place that was the center of interest was the Northglenn Mall. Students went there to buy clothes for different occasions happening at Northglenn. Different places in the mall also donated articles needed for the play "Rock and Roll".

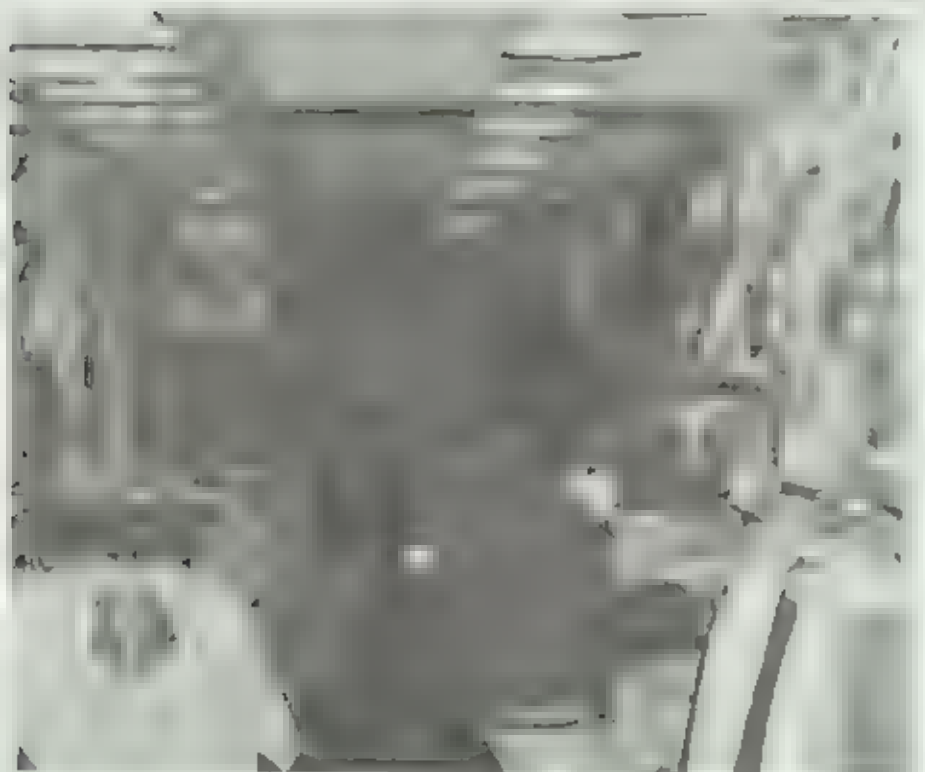

held at the school.

Various classes also took field trips to enhance the learning of students. History of the American West and Photography classes took separate field trips to Central City to capture the historical sights of Colorado.

Other off-campus activities included such things as going to the new Burger King on 104th and Federal, going to dollar night movies at Northglenn Six, going on retreats for different clubs or classes, and going out with friends to school events.

These activities helped enhance the learning and enjoyment of the year.

Students from Northglenn venture to Central City on a field trip for History of the American West. Jodi Neal, Tina Lucero, Marie Abeyta, and Alyssa Lewis, along with other students, went to learn about the historical sights that were a part of 19th Century Colorado Gold Rush.

Randall's in the Northglenn Mall is the shop where most of Northglenn's males go to rent tuxedos for prom. Randall's also supplied Northglenn with costumes for the musical "Rock and Roll".

With Spring in the air, Angie Walz shops for new clothes needed for the Beach 8a. Dance sponsored by Honor Society. Honor Society also sold leis for the dance to help raise money for their various activities.

When dealing with Close Encounters of the Occupational Kind,

Students With A Job Receive More Than Money

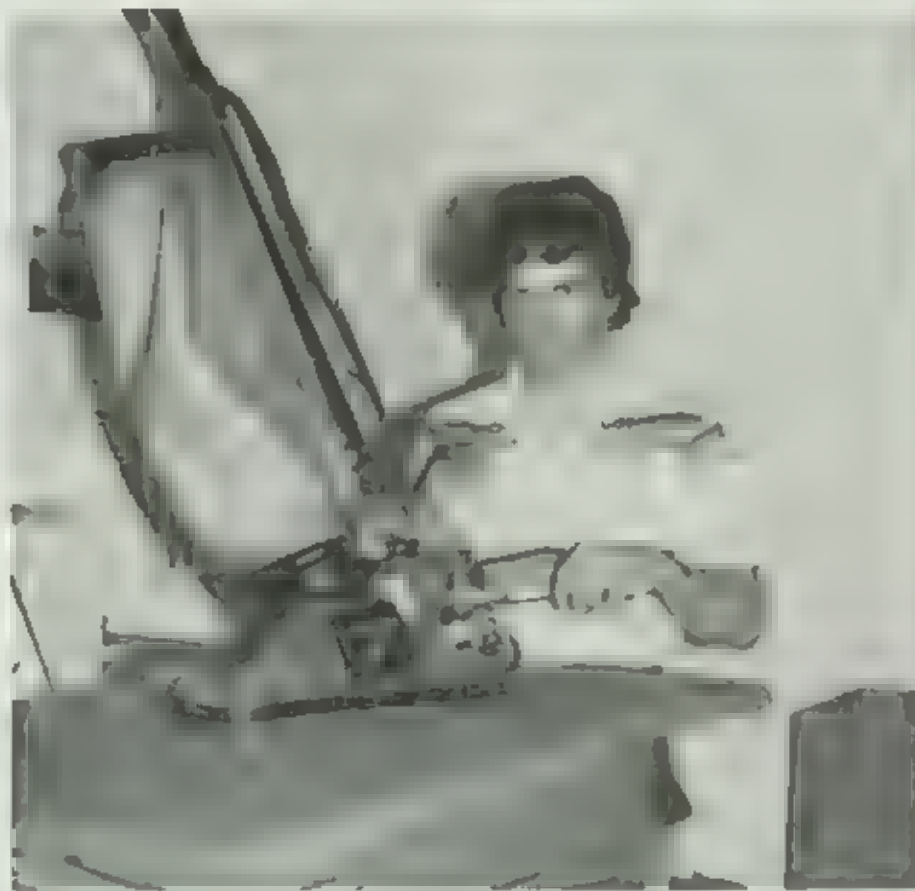

Take note, readers! Learning wasn't only on the Norse campus. As a matter of fact, more learning took place out in the real world as Norse lived that chapter called, "Learning to Succeed in the Work World" or "Sixty Second Manager" or "The Shining."

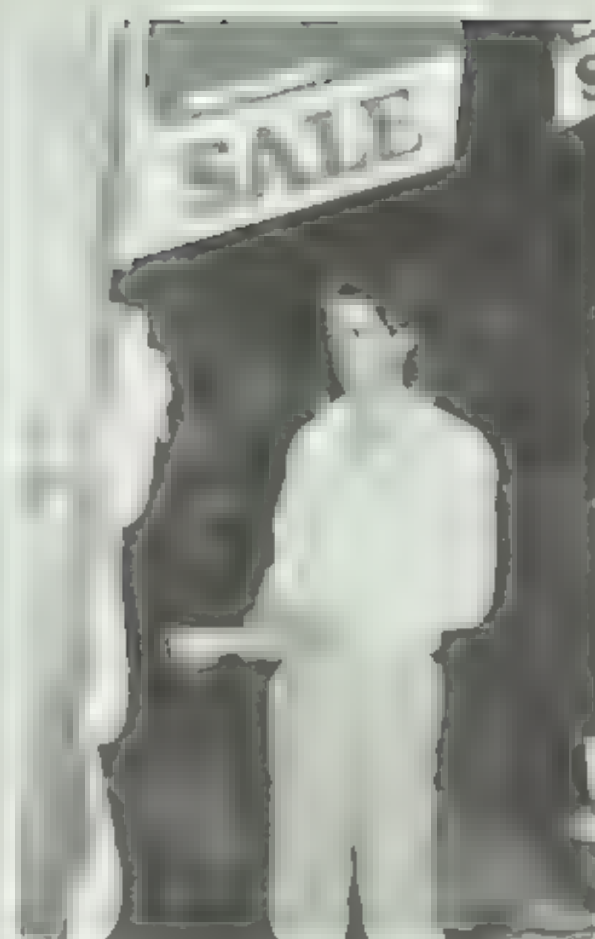

The Norse proved to be a monumental part of the community's work force. Though not always treated fairly, and sometimes underpaid, students learned what the exciting "world of work" truly had to offer. If it meant frying hamburgers at the local McDonald's, or being a clerk at the Mall, Norse began to gain experience that would help them in their future careers. Though not all jobs were glamorous, and some were even down right terrible, the students of Northglenn proved that they are the future by helping the economy of the city grow to new heights.

The Colorado Incredible Machine came to Northglenn, providing the city with one of the few in the entire state and offering jobs to students such as senior Todd Oak. The incredible machine engraved pictures, special messages, or anything else on plexiglas.

With screwdriver in hand, Tracy Smith begins repair of a vacuum cleaner at Arvada Kirby. Learning to fix these machines was a healthy experience that will help with any other machine he might run across.

With concentration, Mike Koerle types in an order at Walden books. Working in a book store allowed Mike the opportunity to experience a wider range of literature than other wise possible.

A platform is a good place to sit on for Lee Majerus as he waits for his mother to get off work at the Shoe Boat. Although he didn't work at the store, the association with his mother taught him the basics of what a job experience was like.

At the Carousel Snack Bar in the Northglenn Mall, Randy David gives change for a five after processing an order. The ability to handle money was a hands-on experience that helped prepare him for the future.

Good salesmanship is demonstrated by Brian Parr as he shows a shoe to a customer at Open Country. Salesmanship skills proved to be helpful while patience and self confidence were some of the fringe benefits developed.

At Expression, an upbeat junior department at Fashion Bar, Heather McKinney along with co-worker Diane Salcho, shows that work can be enjoyed. Knowing that the customer was always right, all employees of retail had the flexibility to work with all types of people.

Another string another knot shows Michelle Clark that this kind of work can be harder than she expected. Taken as an elective credit, these classes provided students with time to be creative and take a break from the books and pens.

A mess of strings are no challenge for Elaine Rivera, but Robert Abeyta seems to be doing a little better. After the tangles and messes, works of art came from within the walls of this room.

Seniors Marty Riddle and Brian Dingwall check to see if their physics projects are completed perfectly. It was necessary for students involved in athletics to excel in the class room as well as in the field to maintain good academic standing.

Students maintain a high standard as Academics and Sports Go Hand in Hand

Whether it be a sport, band, cheerleading, a club, or a play, students had to learn a successful balance of their time while giving equal distribution to their studies. For many that created no problem, for a precise scheduling of their activities was put into effect. With a new rule put into effect on academics for athletics, students would now have to be enrolled in at least 5 classes (up one from the former four), and not fail two of them. For the athletics of Northglenn that meant another class and more homework added to their full schedules. Then how could it be possible that seven football players were in Honor Society and still managed two-a-day? Or what about being in the Norse band, a Drum and Bugle Corps outside of school, and still maintaining a high GPA? Or consider competing in sports, cheering for sports, and still meeting the academic requirements of the spirit squads. The requirements of all athletes were enforced by the coaches and administrators to help students excel not only on the field but also in the class room. It took a person with a true sense of responsibility and dedication to create a balance with equal sides, a true Norseman!

A poster hanging in the window of the counseling center distracts Dean Sagher from his activities of the present. Dean was a member of the Norse Marching Band and expanded his horizons outside of school as a member of the Blue Knights Drum and Bugle Corps.

An introduction to a new idea has Vic Wirick, Lauri Gallagher, and Kurt Johnson searching for the way out. Science classes opened the door to excitement and extra challenges for most students who chose to enroll.

As activities promote wellness,

Students Learn Importance Of Good Health

Wellness Week proved to be a great success at NHS. The students all participated in at least one of the many activities offered. There were aerobics classes offered with the gym always jam packed. The Channel 9 Health Fair, also a great success, gave students not only the chance to come and have their health checked but also allowed certain students to do many of the tests on fellow students. Many students showed they cared for the gift of life by giving blood during the blood drive sponsored by the Key Club. Since alcohol and drunk driving had become a major problem, there was an assembly given by the Adams County District Attorney on the major penalties if caught driving while intoxicated. The A Team, comprised of former stars, traveled to NHS to talk about how "tick tock the clock was running out," giving students the message to make the most of life. Wellness Week provided Norse with the chance to learn about their health, their well being, and the most of all, their imposing future.

A simple, yet imperative blood pressure test is performed by volunteer Theresa Raker on participant Deb Ledbetter. The 9 News Health Fair proved to be an educational experience for not only participants, but for the many volunteers who participated. Northglenn Cable Vision, through a grant, even joined the fun as teacher Barb McCarthy and students Scott Ford, Philip Carney, Eric Harding, and Marcel Carlsson produced a short cable program featuring the Health Fair and the Wellness Week activities.

Laughter hides any type of fear during the blood drive as 9 News sports personality Tom Green proves. Mr. Green was generous enough to donate his blood and time to promote the Key Club's annual drive.

The future is always something to consider and the controversial A Team attempts to prove this by touring various schools with their message. The group, with the help of their signs, was met with mixed reviews throughout the school.

With the help of a Holiday Health Club fitness instructor students and teachers alike learned the basics of aerobics fitness. The classes, offered two hours a day during Wellness Week, proved to be most successful in helping fit Norse.

Teachers really put trust in their students as Troy Pearson pricks the finger of Nurse Cindy Johnstone during Wellness Week. Channel 9 has sponsored the event since the beginning.

Teaching students that drinking and driving does not pay is Adams County District Attorney Jon Smith. He left everyone thinking about the serious penalties if caught drinking and driving.

A look of confusion appears upon the face of a participant of the health fair as her finger is pricked by Scott Dragoon. Scott, being the former head boy, wouldn't hurt one, would he?

In order to help him relax, Ms. Mable comforts Mr. Schweiss into letting him know he's done the right thing by donating blood for the Key Club Blood Drive. Ms. Mable was the sponsor for the Key Club.

Chapter IV

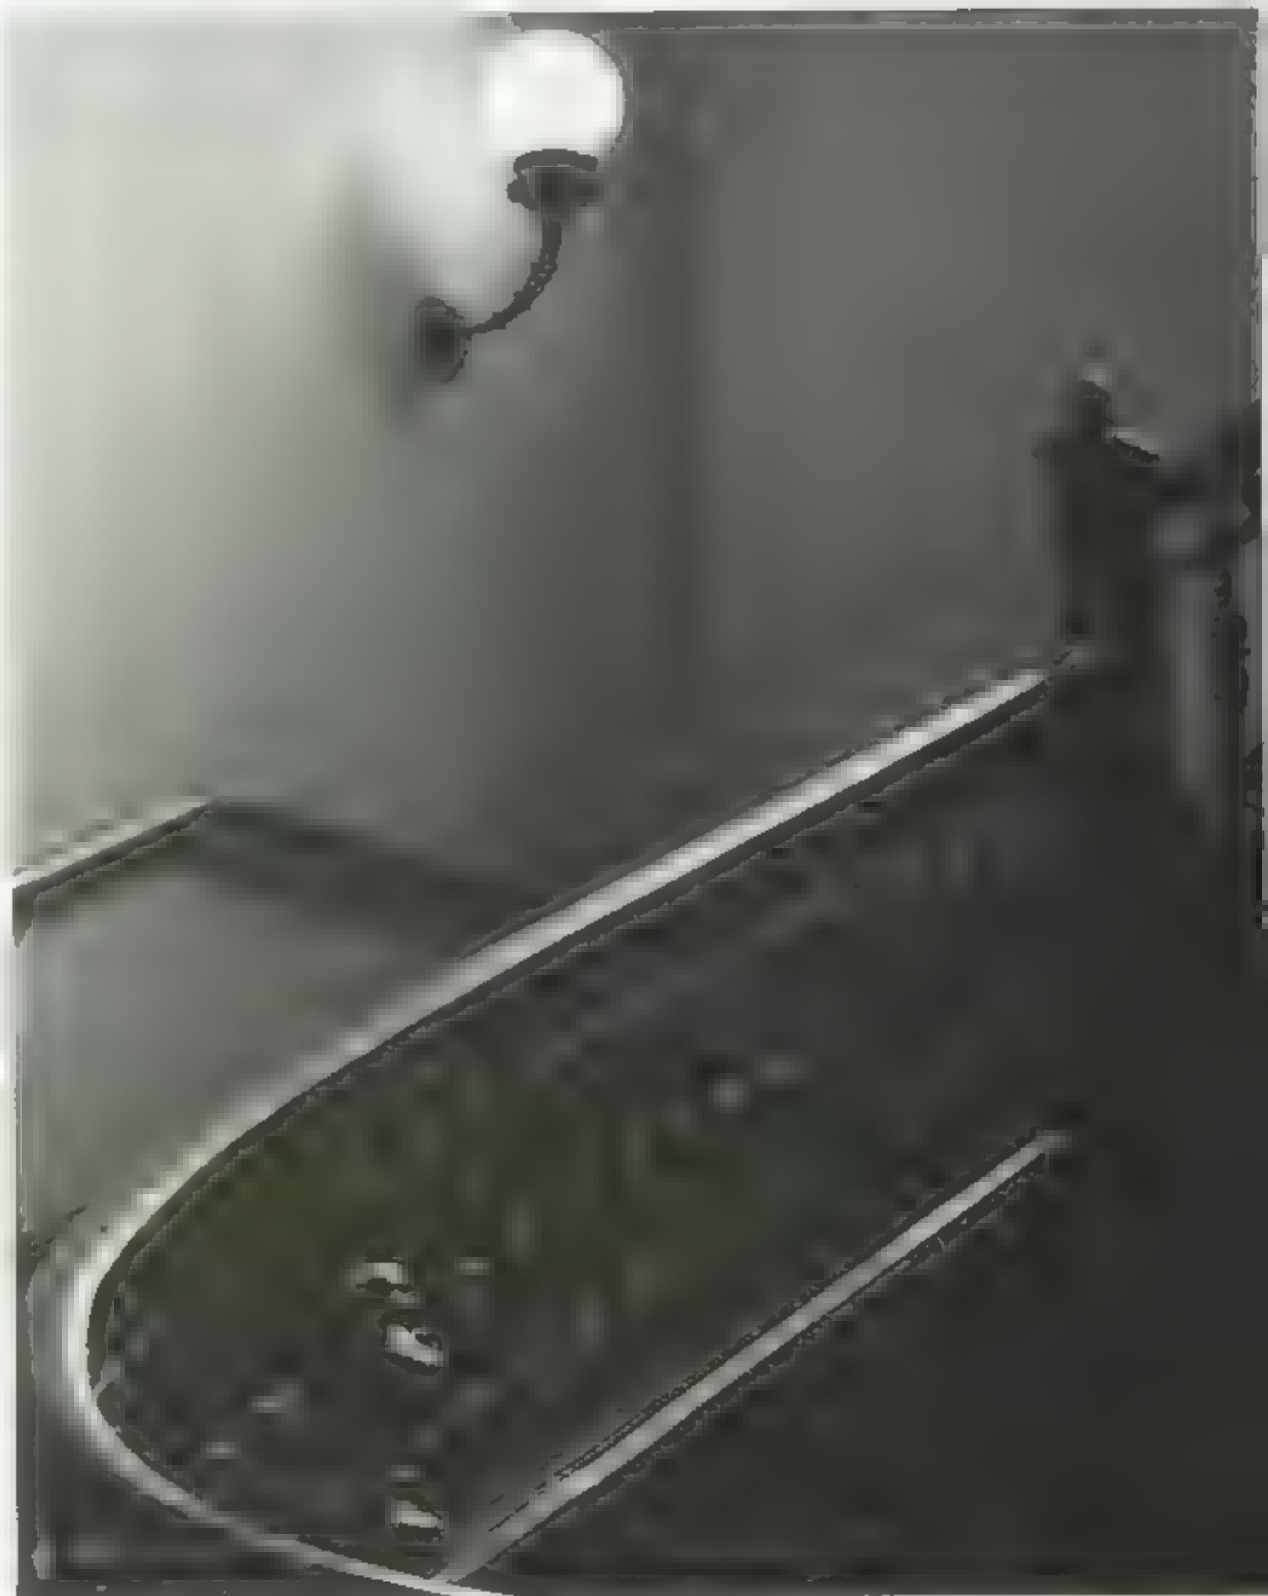

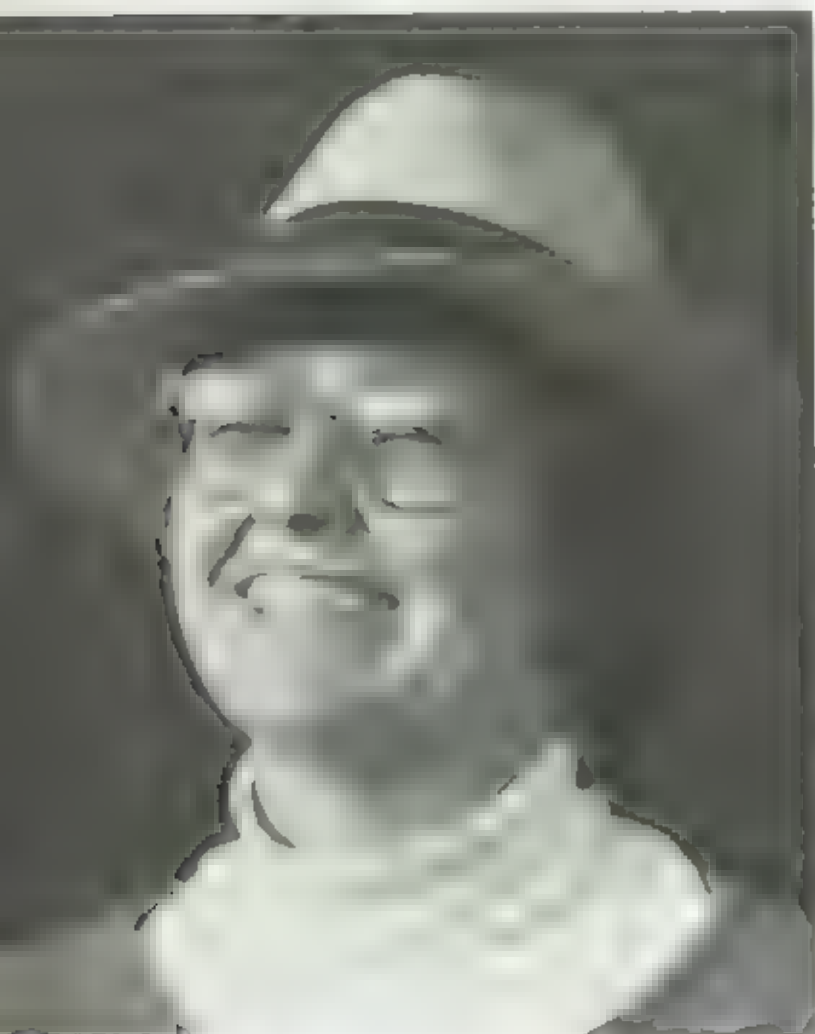

Taking the social challenge

Norse Triumph Over School Day Blues

The thought of work, work and more work, with no play, brought fear of the school day blues to many students, faculty, and parents. A solution which came to mind, suggested all Norse needed was a SOCIAL LIFE!! It was a joint effort of clubs, athletics, faculty, students, and parents to give Northglenn the time of its life. Creating school spirit by getting people involved and showing true pride was the first plan of attack. Secondly, the Norse turned around the forbidden rule of evening activities and put on dances, movies, plays and banquets. The final step was to furnish educational, yet enjoyable activities during the school day. That unsolved solution was resolved by many, not only in school, but also in the community, it became a matter of PRIDE. Workshops were put on, movies shown, health was given a check up. For the first time, school was fun and the true definition of SOCIAL was known. Thus, the 85 NORDIC SAGA lived the tale wrote the book like man. Norse were ALIVE!!

Manfred and Duffy Corndoggies pals are played by Mike Urban and Ron Bossen. "Duffy's a nerd, Forrest is a jock but Manfred is the coolest of them all!" Duffy can hear, forget, see, remember, he does and understands.

The most spirited, friendly, chesty, enthusiastic, bubbleheaded girl at Hoover High, "Bumpers" Louise was played by Megan Sells. Darlene, played by Rachel Renz, was the spirit of Hoover High.

The crowd gasped as the motorcycle gang takes over Pop's Pop Shop. The students of Hoover High looked on with concern for their football hero Forrest, but in the end Pop's Pop Shop was once the gathering of Hoover Student's: Leonard Arellano, Fredenque Durant, Steve Rutherford, Lisa Loyd, Rob Leaned and Louisa Seely. Johnny Sapphire and the gemstones were played by Mike Papiow, Kim McNall, Rebecca Oker, Meissa Olinger, Michelle Strauss, and Louisa Seely. Johnny the Super Star Rocker brought singing and dancing to the cast and crowd as the Gemstones backed him up.

Also in the cast were Mike Smith (Pop), Tammy Pacheco (Sally Kay), Cindi Berr (Mary Gayle), Michelle Strauss (Gwen). Others included Renee Martin, Mike Parsons, Beck West, Bill Foster, Jim Fytte, Lynda Kacynski, Randy Mossman, Pauline Geary, Rebecca Ocker, Matt Overbay, Marianne Coates, Missy Davis, Carrie Murphy, Lavonne Yostley, Ami Scanga, Laura Haralson, Karen Marshall and the NORSE JAZZ BAND's director was Roger Harding and jazz Band Director was Mike White.

The four lettermen jocks are played by Steve Schwarz (Bud), Bill Plisz (Butch), Steve Sanford (Frankie), Jeff Wheeden (Forrest). Bud is a typical jock! I love sports and girls. Frankie is the right handed man of Forrest second in command. Forrest is the local football hero. Mr Cool and Mr Wonderful all in one!

Baseball, apple pie and Betsy Lou are the three ingredients that make up this all American guy! Coondoggie played by Donny Crowley is a hero because of his simplicity and ability to identify with everyone. Betsy Lou played by Raeanne Durkee is a sweet and innocent angel who falls in love with her special guy.

Sell out crowds see large cast of Norse "Rock-n-Roll"

After hard work and determination, after struggling with hammers, paint and furniture to get props all set up, the musical "Rock-N-Roll" began to come alive. The saga doesn't end there. There were also hours and hours of learning lines and the 50's dance steps. According to Ron Bossen who played Duffy in the play, the cast of Rock-N-Roll practiced about five hours a night for eleven weeks. The musical was choreographed by Ms. Lee McCabe and music directed by Ms. Susan Thompson. Crowds were massive as Mrs Davis, Deca store supervisor said, "The students have a lot of talent; the drama students are very good." The musical sold out all nights, a Northglenn High History Maker! The musical brought a change of pace to Northglenn as the entire community was aware and enjoyed the talents of their offspring. Obviously, the Drama department had come alive in '85.

Big Brother reveals his presence to Winston and Julia (Frank Roark and Amy Willard) as they put up their hands to be arrested. Students felt that Frank and Amy's performances were excellent.

Norse vaporized as McCabe Produces 1984

"Big Brother is watching!" Students were puzzled when this phrase appeared in the daily announcements notifying students of the Drama Club's Fall Production, 1984. The play, which was adapted from the book 1984 by George Orwell, was Lee McCabe's first production at the school. It concerned living constantly under the eye of "Big Brother," a type of authoritarian government that seemed to know what everyone was doing and thinking. Ideas such as hate sessions and  $2+2=5$ , denials of the "other society" constituted the play. Thus, the actors were presented with the difficult task of precise interpretation; however, Ms. McCabe's stated, "They (the cast) did an excellent job at understanding and portraying very complex characters." Reaction from students was also surprising. One student felt that the concept of the play was a frightening and difficult idea to accept, yet the players seemed to have little problem getting the audience involved. Students really began to think about living in a society lacking even the freedom of thought. Other reactions to the play by students were a new vocabulary and pride. Teachers threatened students with vaporization if their homework wasn't finished. And math teachers were taunted by students saying, " $2+2=5$ ." Students were also overwhelmed with the talent of their peers starring in the play. Overall, Ms. McCabe's first production at the school was a success, and both the concept and performances will be remembered by Norse and affect their way of thinking in the years to come. Remember: "Big Brother may be watching!"

Behind the scenes, keeping things in order is the stage crew and the director. Lee McCabe. 1984 was Ms. McCabe's first production at NGHS.

"With Big Brother around, things just aren't the same," is the thought expressed by the landlady as Winston and Julia ask to rent the apartment. The landlady was portrayed by senior Shannon Rafferty

Winston speaks about a concept of government differing from that of Big Brother as Julia changes into a new dress. The play presented students with some frightening concepts of corruption in government

O'Brien, portrayed by Randy Mossman, speaks secretly with Winston and Julia concerning a trade of favors, a book, and permission for marriage as Martin listens. Ideas such as love and marriage were not permissible by Big Brother and were punishable by vaporization

Say Hi,' says Aunt Roseanne Durkee to her niece Roxanne as they both enjoy the 50's atmosphere. A future Nurse, Roxanne seems to have misgivings about noise and big gyms

A dance in the gym with the rock of the 50's brought Asst Principal Lou Caricato and Michelle McGee out to the lobby for a break. Dancing to the 50's music made everyone slightly exhausted and thirsty for a cherry cola

The parents of Andrea Moliconi (who was not only helpful in organizing the 50's dance, but was also a dedicated yearbook student) take a break from the action. The Moliconi's enjoyed the 50's dance as they relived the 50's

Just inside the main entrance of the main gym, Jeff Homen and Anne Pieper enjoy a private conversation. The dances were not only a place to dance but a place to meet new people to get to know someone better

In the lobby just outside the main gym, Lanae Smith, Amber Britton, Jaymie Peters, and Denise Laurita gang together just before the informal sock-hop. Relaxed dress codes for some of the dances encouraged many students to show up that otherwise would be intimidated by formality

By the concession stand, Ryan Garbler takes a break from dancing to cool off with a cold root beer float with Brian Hodges. The Junior Class sponsored the dance to raise money for the Senior Prom.

As the gym rocks on, sophomore Dawn Buss confers with senior Jeff Bernatow on the dance's success. As a member of Student Government, Jeff helped organize the 50's bash.

With a visit from Elvis, The Memorable 50's Swing In

When living a novel, one has to be careful to balance the plot, the characters, the theme. The 85 Nordic Saga was no exception as the yearbook staff tried to tell the tale that the Norse were living. So to tell of just athletic victories was not the whole story. To tell of the changed schedules was not the whole story. After all, even the teachers would admit that while the program went on, everyone was secretly thinking of their SOCIAL LIFE!

And social life meant dances. After student government held dances after games, the word went out that dances were Wagam at Northglenn High. The juniors planned long and hard for their 50's Dance and the root beer floats were ready. So were the cherry cokes! What was intended to be a fundraiser for the Prom expenses a month later turned out to be a quiet evening of reminiscing to rock and roll. Raeanne Durkee's father brought his old records and the few in attendance rocked to Elvis and the Everly Brothers.

Norse Have "Only Just Begun"

The date of May 18th had been set early in December for Northglenn's nineteenth annual prom. For the second year, prom was celebrated at the Regency's Grand Ballroom. As couples appeared dressed to the hilt, they danced to the live music of "Strictly Business."

Through a year of successes and failures, the junior class was able to pull through and raise enough money to rent the Regency along with After the Gold Rush for The Attendance. Not only did juniors have to sell concessions at all the home football games, but they also had to find time to put on dances, bake sales, and anything else to make a few extra dollars to put in the fund.

Though prom took a big sum of money out of the Junior Student Council fund, it also took a "chunk" out of parent's and student's savings. Whether it was buying a fancy gown, renting a tuxedo, paying a hairstylist, or picking up the tab at a restaurant, most found themselves to be nearly broke the day after.

"What a great way to end a high school career," believe newly crowned king and queen Scott Drago and Karen Collard. In order to eliminate the "hassle" of royalty nominations, a new election process was used and students voted in front of the office instead of in their third hour classes.

Because of numerous ties, the number of nominees was cut back. Voting was held as soon as Norse walked in the Grand Ballroom.

The feeling of romance and togetherness is shown by Robbie Berryman and her date. Prom gave Norse couples the chance to dress their best for an evening of fun and remembrance.

Not knowing her picture was about to be taken puts a shocking look upon the face of junior Lon Cherry. Lon stated that Jeff Bernatow, her date, made her evening "the best it could be."

The mothers of Laura Gallagher and Holly Bullock show that they are having just as great a time as their daughters. Carol and Donna were parent chaperones at many Northglenn activities.

A gloomy and rainy prom night is brightened with beautiful ladies and handsome gentlemen in their formal attire

Dancing in the Grand Ballroom of the Regency aroused the interest of Mr and Mrs. Ken Ebuna, newcomers from Australia, Mr and Mrs. Hodgins, and Prom adviser Mrs. Walther

Enjoying the elegant atmosphere of the Regency are Bill Birmingham, Michelle Strauss, Marianne Coates, and Ron Bossen

As their dreams of a romantic evening finally becoming reality Holly May and Scott Stebbins enjoy a slow dance. The band played a variety of music to suit the tastes of everyone.

Dressed with grace and style, Norse Were Among The Elite

As the Norse arrived with a feeling of effervescence, they were planning on making it a night to remember. Decorated silver and blue, the Grand Ball Room of the Regency Hotel proved to be the best location for classy Norse prom-goers. The memorable atmosphere was accented throughout the evening with butterflies in the stomachs of everyone as each speculated about the election of royalty. Dancing to the theme song, "We've Only Just Begun," seniors anxiously waited to hear the results of the voting. The winners were announced around 11:00, and for those who arrived early, the electricity of the moment was at an almost unbearable peak. Amid intense anticipation, Matt Walsh and Eve Waterson stepped upon the stage to announce the royalty. Kelly Whitmer and Michelle McGee were named junior escort and attendant, while Marty Riddle and Sarah Mears became the senior escort and attendant. A tense silence suddenly fell upon the Grand Ball Room as the King and Queen were about to be announced. The voice of Matt Walsh rang out, "The 1985 Prom Queen and King are Karen Collard and Scott Dragoon!" The crowd became a frenzy of cheers and dancing as Karen shed a few tears of happiness. It was most definitely a night to be cherished and remembered.

Upon arrival from dinner, junior Jamie Sprouse and his date, Liz Parr, are greeted in the lobby of the Regency. Dinner and flowers were a tradition provided by dates to make a memorable evening.

As formal wear was requested of Northglenn Promgoers, Norse stepped out in formal dresses and tuxes at the Regency Saturday evening, the 18th of May.

As class of 1985 bids farewell, Friends Say Goodbyes

"We are the future," the class motto that had gone from predicting the future to now entering it, meant to the class of '85 that their turn had come and it was up to them to take that first step into the "real world" and leave an impression never to be forgotten. Graduation was the last event this class would attend as their high school years came to a close on this day. To all, it brought a thrill of achieving and knowing that no better could have been done, but the tears still came — tears of joy and sadness alike, from not knowing what was ahead for them or if they would ever see their fellow Norsemen again. Could it be that the best days of their life were really over and something totally new and unique awaited each individual? This event was one that would be remembered and cherished by all for the rest of their lives. The mood bounced back and forth a few times throughout the ceremony with the return of speaker Rex Geisler. His message told the true story of what awaited them and how to handle the future. He also brought alive some of the past as he helped to relive a few of the greatest moments of the last three years. Geisler had an unforgettable impact on the seniors and the audience alike. It was referred to as education but enjoyable, funny yet emotional, bright but serious. Though graduation is a time of joy, it would always be remembered also for the sorrow that came as the Class of 85 attended its last high school event.

Norse Open Door To Future

A hot, sunny day, soon to be threatened by ominous clouds, saw 562 graduates presented to Superintendent Mitchell for graduation. Valedictorian Carl Lienert and co-salutatorians Amintore Schenkel and Erik Simonson bid fellow graduates the usual goodbye and challenges, but what made the day special was the band/choir rendition of "America, The Beautiful" as local cable vision recorded the event for posterity and the proud moms and dads in the packed bleachers. Anne Lebsack gave the invocation, Sarah Mears the Benediction, and Jodi Newman presented the class gift of a gym mural. Rex Gisler gave the Keynote address and after Faculty Heralds, Dr. Martin Gorce and Shaun Armour, called out the graduates' names, the Class of 85 was a memory, a pleasant, positive, memory of EXCELLENCE

The true essence of being an '85 Norse can only be understood Through a CRITICAL ANALYSIS

Ask any high school student which school is the best and with pride and in-depth sincerity, he would proclaim it to be his own. There must be more than pride and lun to make a high school the best; a school must have students with a will to succeed and the dedication and concentration to achieve its goals. Who sets the goals for a successful high school? The student body as a whole? No. It is a dedication that comes from each student, some more than others. By one's senior year, a Norseman should be able to look upon their school and do a critical analysis-an analysis which will show the student that he will only get out what he puts in. Is NGHS a successful high school with a deep sense of dedication and concentration in everything it does? Let the student reading the 1985 Nordic Saga be the judge. Which high school is the best? The Critical Analysis of the Saga, written by Norse for the Norse, tells it all.

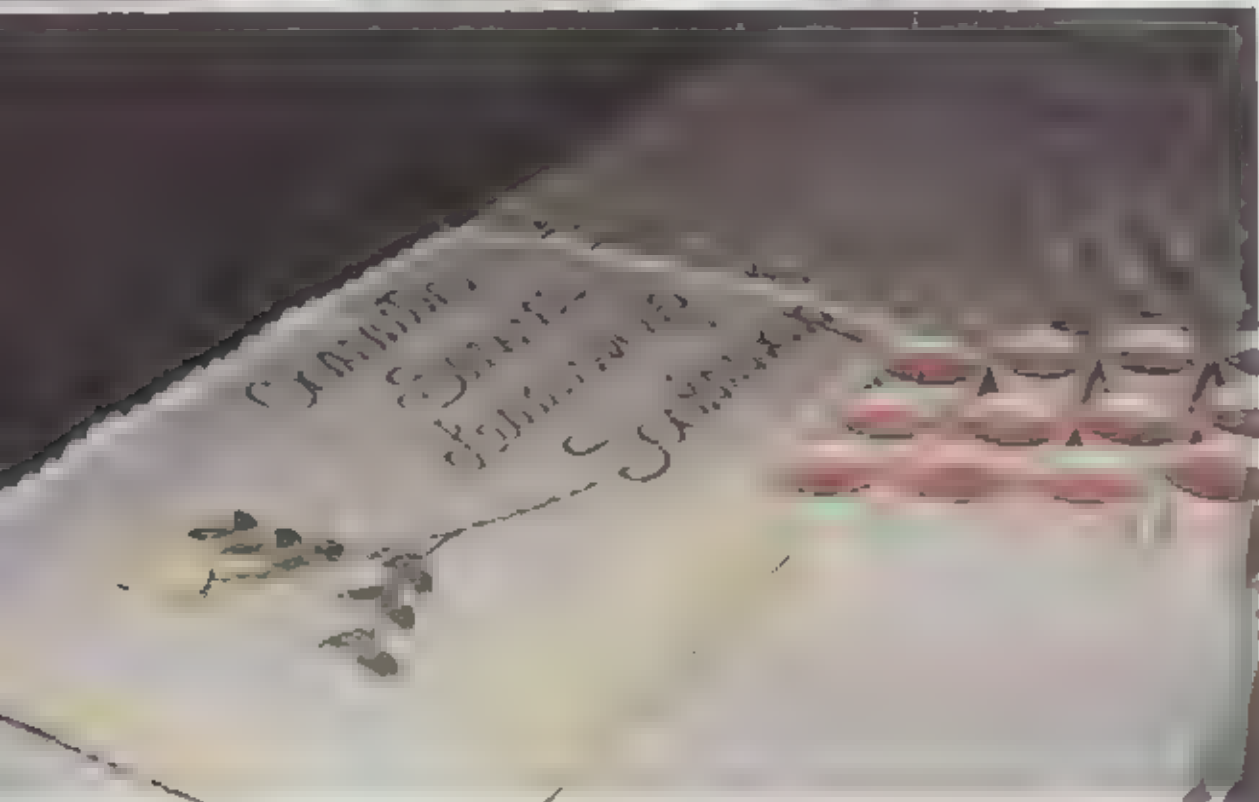

Dean Len Groom and senior Brian Hodges donate blood at the Key Club's drive. The drive raised 83 pints.

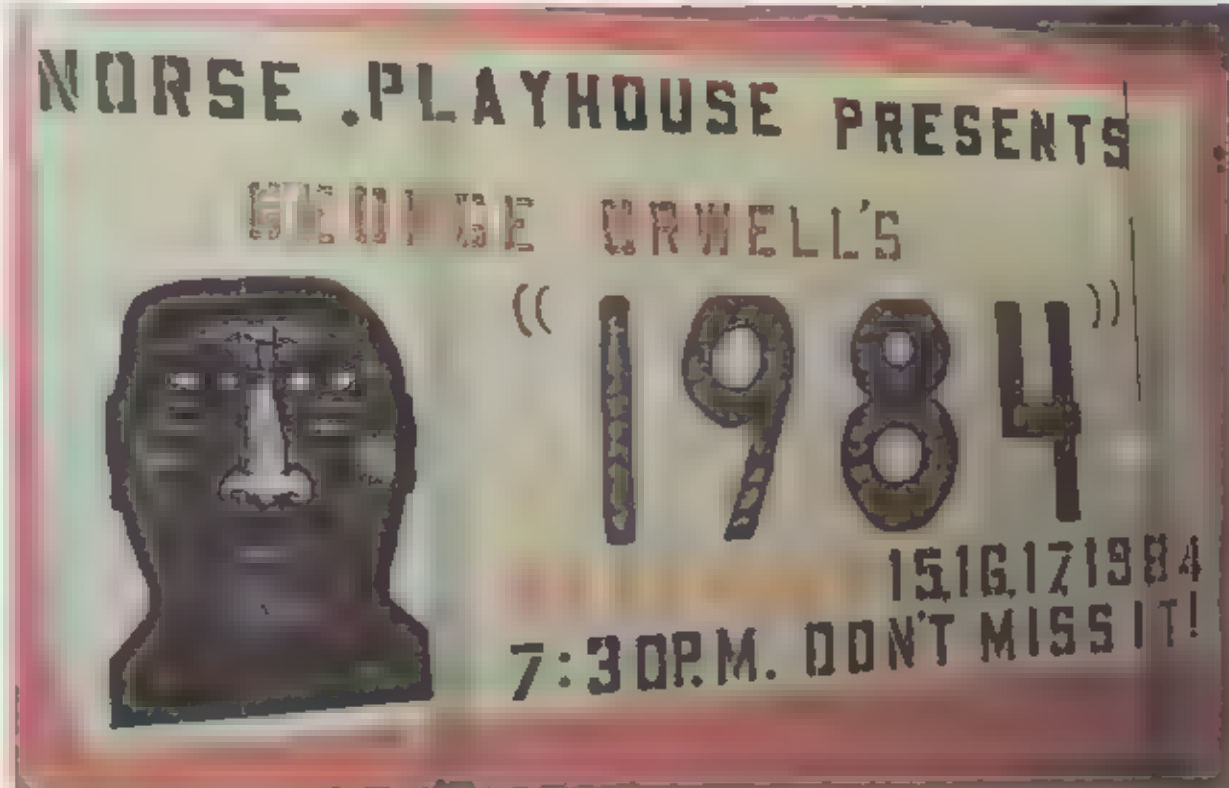

Senior Kristi Cagley shows her dedication by participating in the aerobic workout, with the help of a Holiday Health Club instructor, during Wellness Week.

Channel Two anchorman congratulates CC runner Elaine Strickland upon receiving the Dr Pepper Athlete of the Week Award. The Norse proved their commitment to sports as Jason Whitmer, Amy Hultstrom and Steve Brotzman went on to capture the award in the following weeks.

The girls Cross Country team anxiously awaits the start of another grueling three mile run. The girls team proved to be champions once again by placing first in the district competition and second in the state competition.

As message on a cake at the Honor Society induction reminds all members of the creed on which they base their academic success. Honor Society, a club for students with a GPA of 3.75 or more, inducted 54 new members, proving once again that academics play a major role in the school.

Social studies teacher Rich Schweiss relaxes in the AV room before facing a full schedule of classes. Mr. Schweiss, a devoted member of the Colorado Education Association, played an integral part in improving teaching conditions for all teachers by being elected as a board member for the DTEA.

A fearsome looking face outside the drama department reminds all Norse that Big Brother will vaporize them if they do not see the Norse Playhouse production of "1984". The play turned out to be a huge success for both the players and the school, receiving praise from the many who saw it.

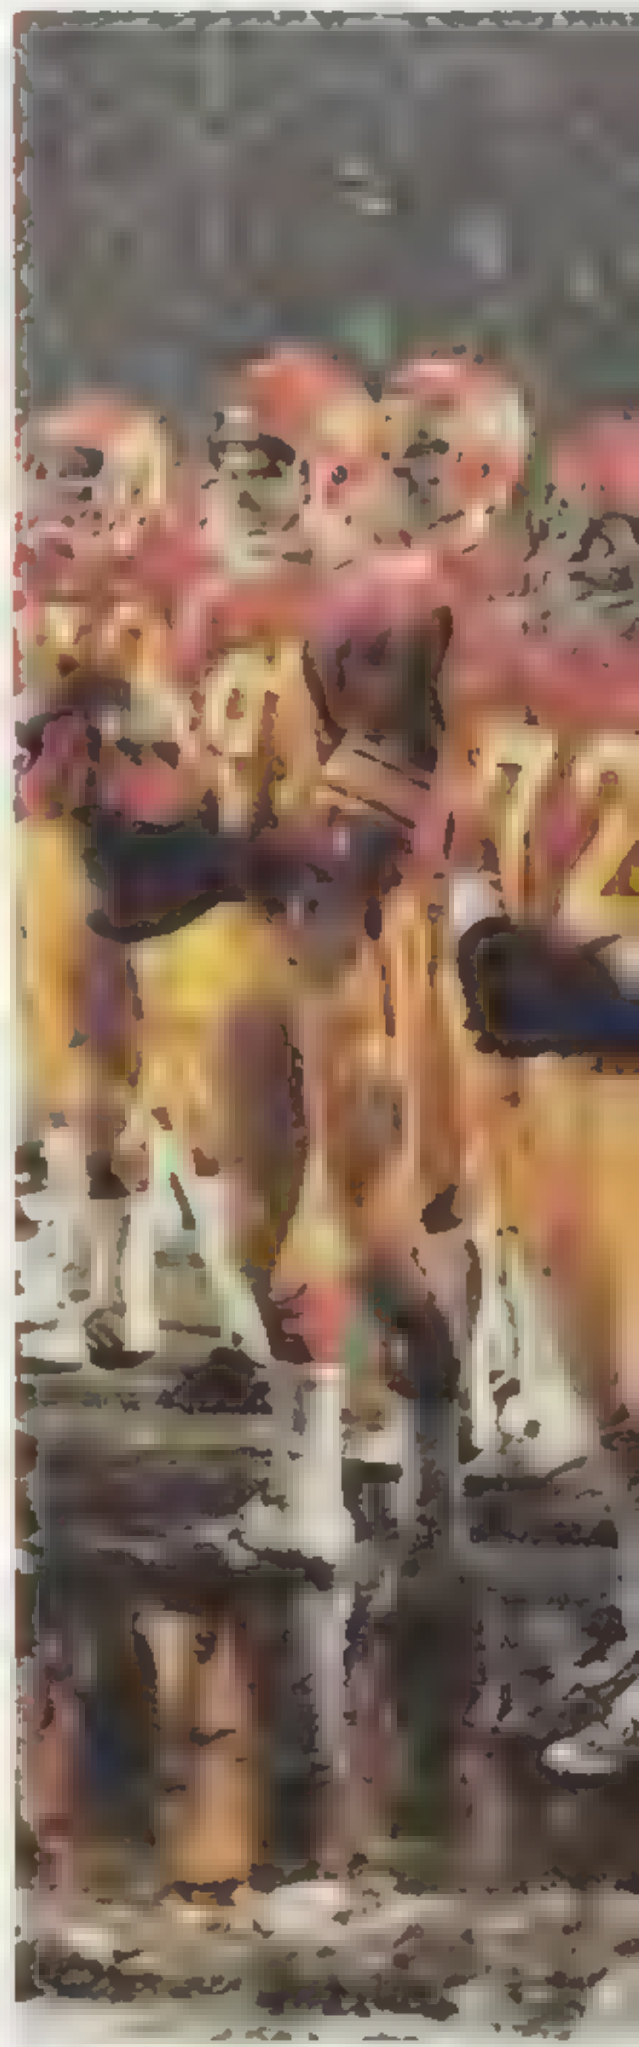

A soccer warm-up packet awaits the return of Tim Carbo, a member of the 4A state champion team

Attempting to thaw frozen fingers amidst a September blizzard is sophomore Adam Whitmer. At 5'11" and 180 lbs., Adam was a valuable starting offensive lineman for the Rain nor snow nor dark of night can keep these Norsemen from playing football. They fought a tough battle on a sloppy field only to find a heart-breaking defeat to arch rival Thornton 3-6 at the Norse Homecoming, one of only four losses of the entire season

When faced with a conflict The Plot was to Win

Constant plotting to do their best . . . that was 1984-1985. Many teams and organizations achieved outstanding accomplishments. Under the supervision of the new band director, Mike White, the marching band placed second in the CBA state competition at District 12 stadium though many felt that they put on a first place performance

Even after a clumsy season beginning, the Norse football team fought hard and took the class 4A state championship by defeating Arvada 21-0. Due to the outstanding support of the coaching staff, the players never gave up hope or confidence in themselves, and they won a hard-earned, and well-deserved, trophy

The boy's soccer team stood up to many difficult obstacles and managed to win every game of the season to place yet another state championship on the wall of the gymnasium. Everyone did his best, and that was the true victory. Always a contender, always a power to be reckoned with, Norse wrote the plot of the 1985 Nordic Saga. Beat 'em!

Junior spirit leader Tina Mackey arouses the juniors at the Powder Puff assembly. The seniors demolished the juniors, thus pointing out another point of view.

The true personalities of macho men shine through as they model the newest addition to their wardrobes. Spirited cheerleaders Henny Blanton, Troy Davis, Darrell Farr, and Shaun Colbert supported the Powder Puff teams.

Wishing the weather weren't spoiling the Homecoming he had planned all during the month of September, a grim Activities Director Low Caricato escorts a freezing Kathy Abbey to the crowning.

Balloons light up the dark sky and start the spirit in families and friends. The crowds not only helped cheer on their team, but at times also got in a word with the referee.

Regardless of what the book is about,
All is written from the Norse Point of View.

When writing the novel of the 1985 Nordic Saga, someone threw away the usual point of view. Everything changed — the way things were done — the way Norse perceived themselves — to the way the world looked at Northglenn

After proving themselves in both athletic and academic abilities, Northglenn had a position among the noteworthy schools of the state, thus further enriching the proud attitude of the school

A true Norse was one who was active in his school. A true Norse was one who would never let his fellow Norsemen down. But a true Norse also knew when to relax — when to have an exciting time. No matter how one looked at it, whether a sophomore, a senior, or somewhere in between, a true Norseman was someone who could carry pride with him at all times

Winding up Melody was a whole new approach as the Homecoming Parade's venue was changed by the city to the south side of 104th Avenue. Going uphill was just another challenge for the Norse; they were going to succeed no matter what!

Keeping with tradition and preserving the seniors superiority over the juniors is the only point of view held by the senior girls, along with the rest of the class of '85. With the help of a superior coaching staff, comprised of Rich Czernicki, Jim Dowling, and Jody Sawdo, the seniors prevailed 39 to 19

Promotion to Band Director means a whole new point of view for Mike White. Guiding Drum Major Kim McNatt in leading the band to a first place finish in regionals, and a second place finish in state competition meant White's appointment was a right move from anyone's point of view

Our Town and Great Expectations produced a Setting with Norse Overtones

Nothing could have been finer than to be from Northglenn in the fall of 1984. The setting was not normal although the year began with considerable enthusiasm and an overall positive atmosphere, stemming greatly from the faculty. With emphasis placed upon not only study skills but school pride, student and staff recognition, staff cohesion, health, and wellness, the setting was a positive one. More personal friendships developed through the participation in co-curricular programs. This unusual set of Norse were achievers striving to excel both mentally and physically truly a commitment to excellence. What changed the setting was the snow, cold weather, financial stress, and national elections. Yet, Norsemen maintained their serenity, concentrated on their tasks, and improved the typical suburban setting into a campus every Coloradoan wished they attended.

Not the usual Homecoming weather, but then this isn't the usual high school campus. As a matter of fact, Northglenn High is not the usual high school. The setting only looks typical.

A stone marker of the CLASS of 1978 marks the entrance to the gym. Each year the senior class contributed something to the school to show their gratitude for their education.

Reminiscent of a Budweiser commercial, Karl's Dairy Farm adds a touch of France to the float. French club members danced the Can-Can to French music during the Homecoming parade.

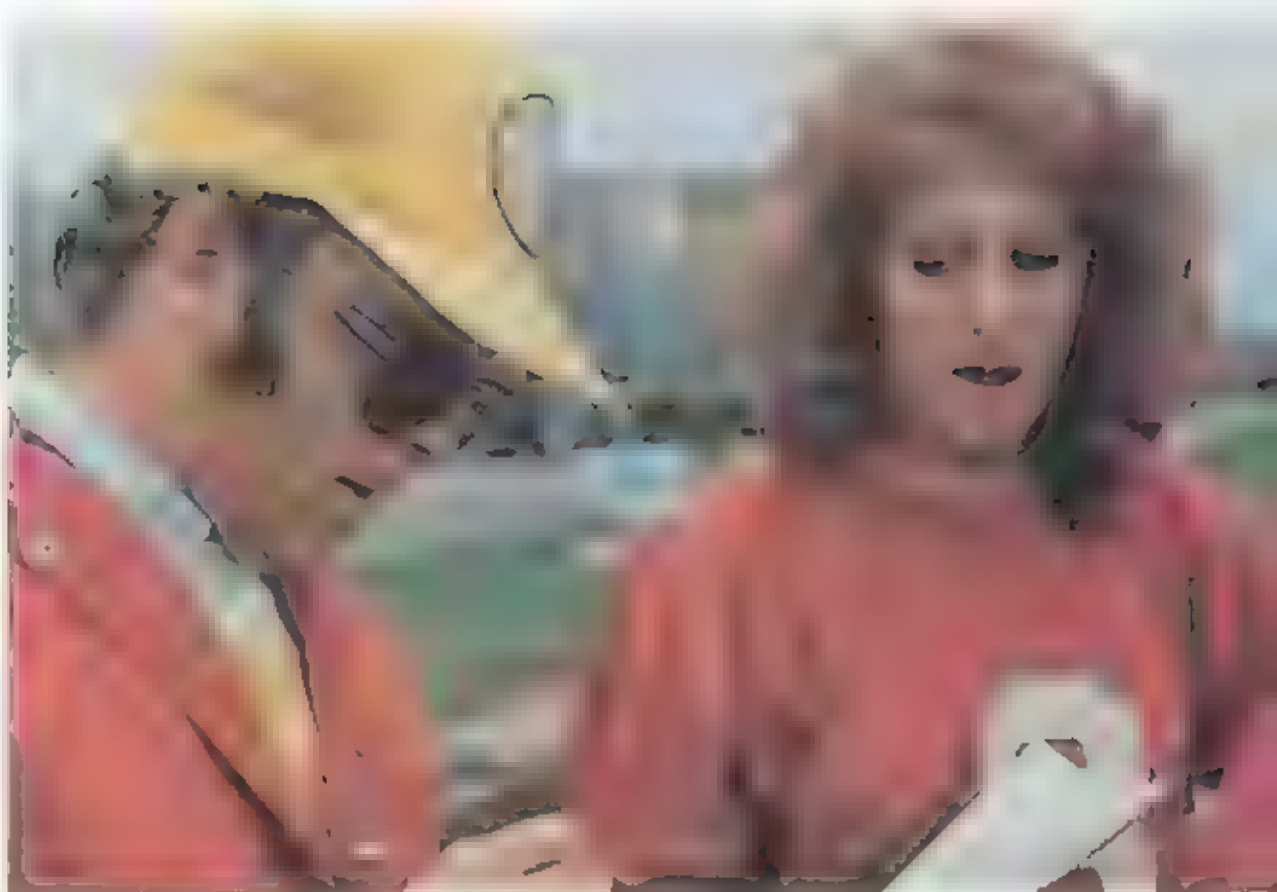

The crowded stands at the Homecoming game display the sense of pride of every Norseman. The temperatures dropped to a frigid 38° during the homecoming game, yet attendance was high.

Red and Gold ... there is no other style at NCHS during Homecoming Week. Laura Harolson studies Mr. Harding's play book. Mr. Roger Harding and new social studies teacher Mr. Michael Robin coached the junior girls.

Western style ... senior powderpuff coached Jim Dowling and Mr. Rich Czernick depict flavor of the old west ... sort of! The yellow shirts were presented at the assembly by the senior girls.

A classy crowning and a bouquet of roses — that's Home coming, Norse style. Elected by the entire student body, Kristi Cagley (cross country and weight lifting star) and Brien Hodges (soccer champ) were elected as models of Commitment to Excellence.

When analyzing the victors of Northglenn, Study the Norse Style

The Norse style . . . it's easily described . . . sweat, aches, scratches, hearts set, improvement, imagination, endurance, devotion, and blue ribbon techniques. Yes, that might be a fair assessment of the Norse style. Yet opponent after opponent, press after press, kept asking, "Who is Northglenn?" the 1985 Saga slowly wrote the story of a quiet middle-class suburban school that used its style to emerge as a powerhouse everytime it took the field in competition. Perhaps that was why an Overland student was overheard to say, "Northglenn, I hate 'em. They always win." And if Norse didn't win, they took defeat with class. Norse-style meant even winning at losing!

With a look of determination, Kathy Shannon marches with the band in the state competition. The band took 2nd place in the CBA State Competition held at District 12 Stadium

Creativity . . . that's Norse style as Matt Esquivel, Chris Ward, Sean Frazier, and Steve Guthrie peek out of a hatch back in the parade. The Homecoming parade had 58 entries, with the seniors winning the grade float competition

Coach Ala Razavi gets a free ride across the field from his soccer team for taking them through a victorious season, all the way to State Champions. Sweat, aches, and scratches were not a care; all the players wanted to do was show the world their coach holding their trophy

Teachers show their "summer" character by barbequing the day before school starts. As Larry Smith, Bob Nunnery, and Principal George McCulloch slave cooking hamburgers, the other teachers enjoy themselves and catch up on gossip.

Before assembly soccer shows their state championship character. Carry Green, Nent Nelke, Loren Shook, Bill Van Hercke, Chris Peterson, and Doug Arnett played to an undefeated 19-0 season.

There are no Scarlet Letters in a Norse Norse Character Analysis

The Norsemen . . . High School of Champions . . . Oh, what a feeling to be called a Northglenn Norsemen. The true character of a Norsemen shown through many opportunities. Through every sport or activity, a Norsemen had the chance to be an individual and express true originality. Commitment to Excellence was shown, but all in his or her own way, and all had fun doing it. Even the teachers and administration expressed character. "This year is starting off a positive year," stated Principal George McCulloch. And it stayed that way. The administration was the backbone of the school. They kept order and almost every one of them could be found at every sport or activity. Who held the school together better than the faculty? Nobody. The teachers had character too, and most of them found extra time to sponsor a club or just get involved in school activities. And the difference between students who were bad and students who were winners was the teacher who cared because true character started at the top . . . and stayed there

As true character comes out, Amy Willard and Tony Roberts clown around in the homecoming parade. Stars in the Norse Playhouse production "1984," Tony played a messenger while Amy captured one of the lead roles as Julia

A smile reflects the true character of every teacher while taking time out to have a first annual teacher group picture taken. Nineteen new teachers were added to the additional 106 teachers on the staff for the 1984-85 school year

"We're crying 'cause you're not buying yearbooks!" is the chant junior Vicki Kemper yells to the Norse before entering the gym for another exciting homecoming assembly - Vicki, also a member of the driving team, showed her spirit by dressing appropriately for Hawaiian Day

After being kicked in the stomach by a Heritage goalie during the 4-A State Championship, varsity soccer player Loren Shoot doubles over in pain. Loren was a key member of the team, helping them achieve a spectacular season of 19-0.

While the football coaches attempt to regain communication with the press box, Brad Anderson, also a football coach, looks up to see their progress in doing so. The coaches showed their commitment to excellence by not letting the team spirit be dampened by low expectations.

Drama club's float rolled down the streets of Northglenn while introducing the play "1984," scheduled for mid-November. The float took approximately two weeks to make and a considerable amount of commitment, which only a Norse could give.

When faced with the cold, the Norse didn't give up; they brought their barbecue grills! Although snow and cold weather were ever present, Norse spirit grew even greater, making the team put up a good fight against the Thornton Trojans.

Pride and Courage defines

The Fighting Norse Theme

Giving up was beyond imagination in the minds of the Norse. If at first one did not succeed, he or she was to try again. Even though things might have looked bad, it was never acceptable behavior to give up. Only by not giving up, only by putting in the time and effort could a Norse be satisfied with a performance. The THEME you see was that a Norse was to always do the best, nothing less.

Although the snow caused many problems for the cheer leaders, smiles remained on the faces of all at the Homecoming game. The Lady Norse proved their true commitment to excellence by keeping up spirit throughout the game.

Even a wheelchair cannot keep Tina Swenson from marching in the Arvada Harvest Day! Accompanied by Lisa Clement and Kathy Shannon, Tina went on to finish the three mile parade.

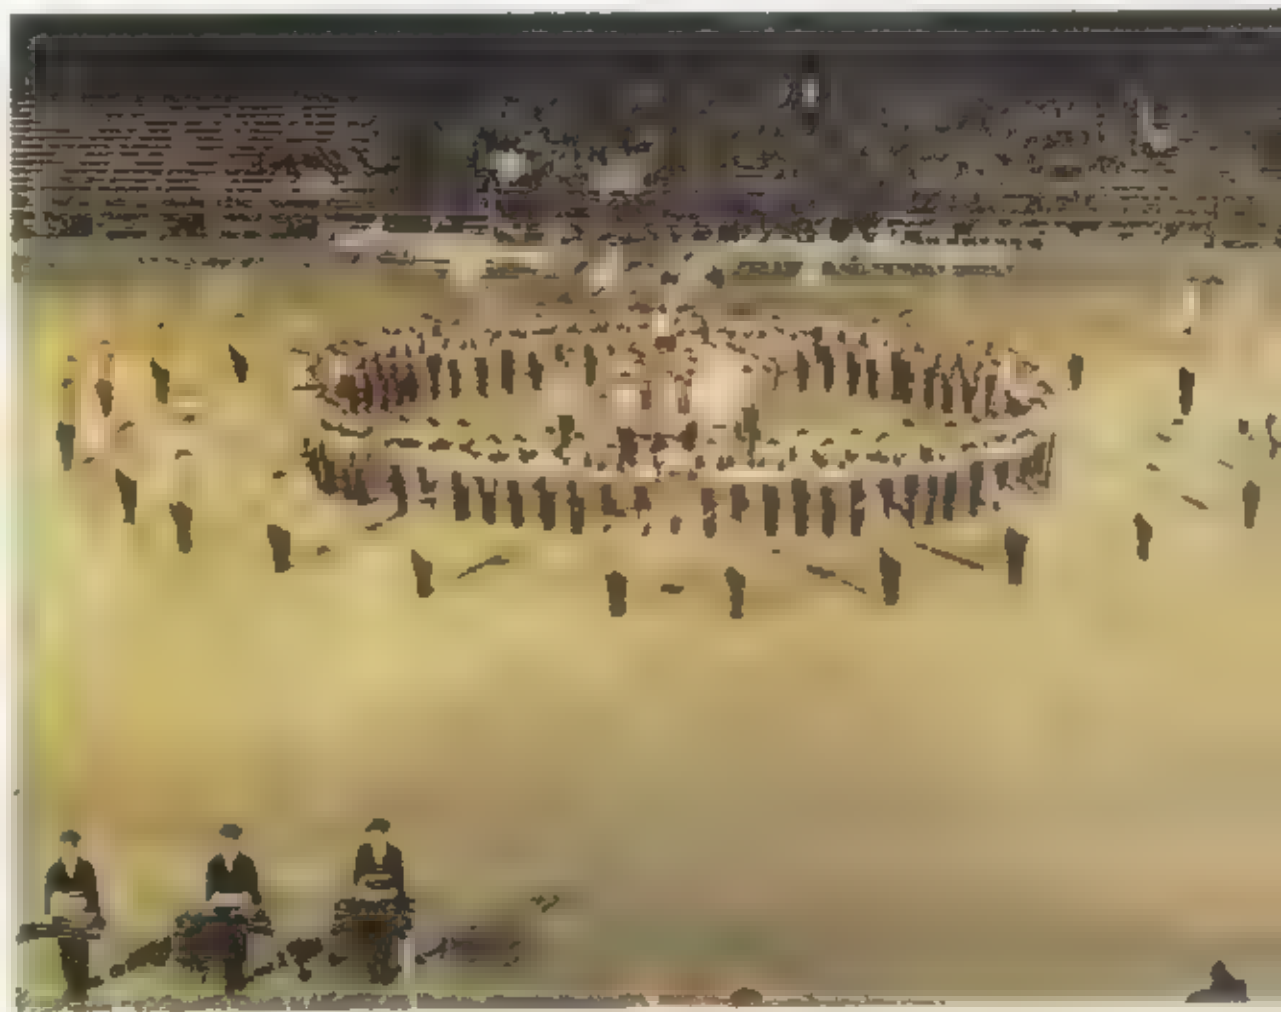

A Norse assembly is led in "The Fight Song" by the Varsity and Junior Varsity cheerleaders, and Pompon squad. At the Rocky Mountain Association's 1984 Mile Hi Spirit Spectacular on December 1, 1984, all squads received a superior rating.

Imagination and thoughts of warm sandy beaches is still stuck in the minds of these Norsemen. Fish, goggles, and towels helped keep hopes of warm weather high when the Homecoming parade made its way over the frozen pavement.

Endurance and devotion flows through the hearts of the Norse Choir in the thirty degree weather. Choir took first place in the float competition during the homecoming parade continuing a winning tradition since '79 (with the exception of '83).

Color, grace, and glamour are the most common answers when someone who has never seen the band perform before is asked, "What do you think?" The marching band went on to take second in state using blue ribbon techniques to achieve their highest potential.

For Whom the Bell Tolls, it tolls not for Northglenn because Northglenn has the Winning Technique Down Pat

Technique, the manner in which technical details are treated or basic physical movement is used (according to The Merriam-Webster Dictionary), was a definition all Norse understood. From soccer to band, swimming to football, drama to choir, each student felt and learned what it meant to be number one.

Technique played an important role in achieving the number one position; it was now the job of the student body to take a stand and play the role. The basic techniques used in sports, drilled every day at practice, echoed across the field or through the walls of the gym, as did technique used in the fine arts: use of counting, beat, and rhythm, techniques used in English with grammar and pronunciation.

If it were art, DECA, science, math or social studies, everyone had to start somewhere — the basics. Applying the basics and developing them into more applicable uses, stressing to people that if they lose the basics they lose the meaning — that was the Norse technique. Norsemen never lost the basics. That's because, basically Norse are THE NORSE!"

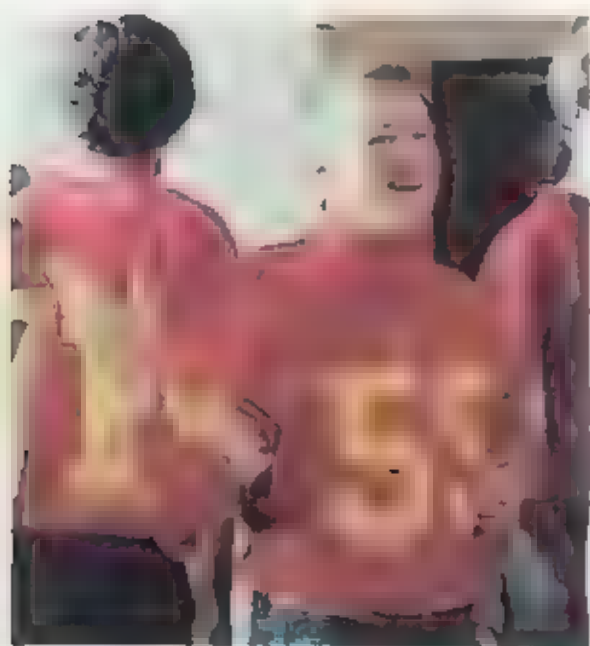

Hands raised and hearts set the girls swimming team cheer on their own competition with Rocky Mountain High School. The technique paid off when the girls swimming team gave Rocky Mountain stiff resistance and showed other schools Norse pride and spirit.

A battle with the weather creates poor visibility for quarter back Jason Whitmer to complete a pass during the Homecoming game. Finishing up with a total of 2,011 yards, Jason's precision greatly improved throughout the season.

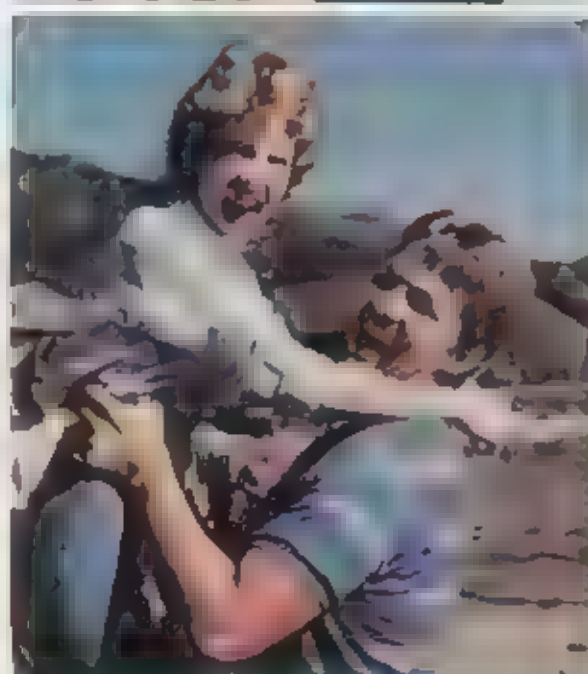

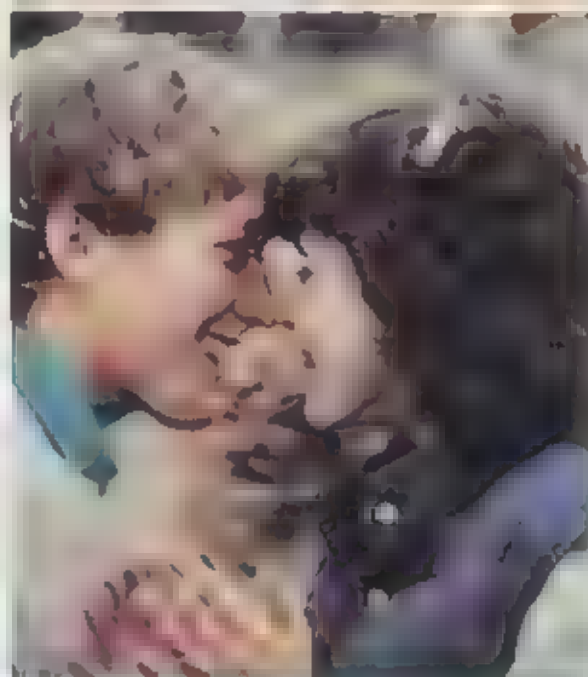

A mutual embrace of joy and congratulations is shared between Kirsti Cagley and Brian Hodges after being announced Homecoming King and Queen. Escorts and attendants were awarded to seniors Jody Newman and Loren Shook, juniors were Cindy Hicks and Kelly Whitmer, and sophomores were Juke Newman and Scott Nagel.

Colophon-a listing of the numerous things that make up this book

This is volume XX of the Nordic Saga printed by Jostens American Yearbook Company, Box 1903, Topeka, Kansas 66601. The plant consultant is Gale Armstrong and our ever helpful sales representative is Jack Eckert 00772. The Nordic Saga is known at the plant as 09878. The theme logo "Norse Notes" was chosen by the co-editors, various members of the staff, and advisor Barbara McCarthy. Permission was received on October 23, 1984 from Cliffs Notes Incorporated for the use of their theme and trademark.

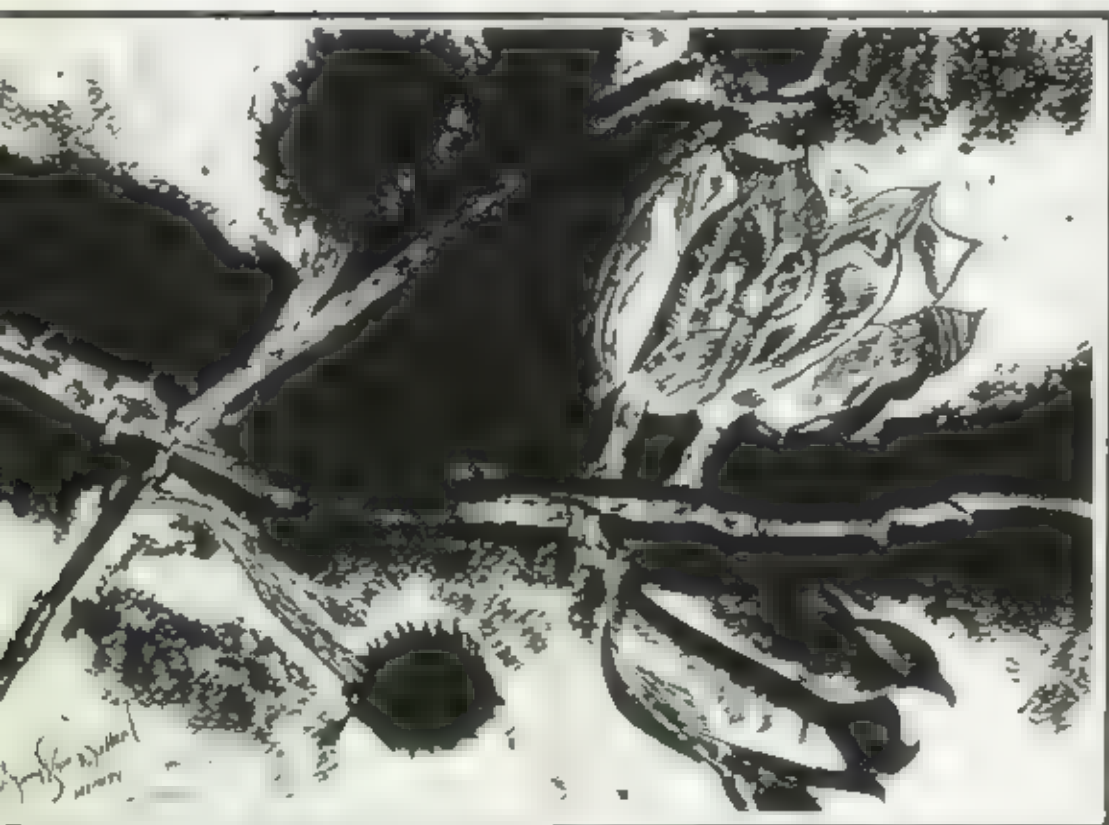

Division headlines are 36pt style 30, main headlines are 30pt style 30 and subheadlines are 18pt style 30. The book is bound in yellow #507 and the logo designed by Ray Dixon is silkscreened in black #326. The backbone is 30pt and 14pt souvenir bold. The back endsheets are full color recognizing the football state championship and the boys soccer state championship. Paperstock on pages 1-32 is ivorytone.

There were 1200 books sold and 384 names stamped in red foil. There were 2105 students at Northglenn in the fall of 1984.

The 1984 Nordic Saga received special recognition for faculty and its fourth gold in a row from the 1984 Colorado High School Press Association Olympics. The 1984 book also received a first place rating from the 1984 American Scholastic Press Association and a first place award from Columbia Scholastic Press Association with all Columbian Honors for advertising, theme, and structure.

An inkwash drawing, portraying the reality of a weed plant, took junior Amy Willard a week of—assume to design and draw. Amy's drawing, along with 25 other pieces displayed at a fair held at the Northglenn Mall in early April.

It is easy to decipher that when Stephanie Harter drew the Nike tennis shoes, she was feeling a strong pride in the dedication of her fellow students to athletics. High personal achievement in athletics, was not only dependent upon the quality of the player but also the quality of the player's equipment.

Norse Compile Notes For *The 1985 Nordic Saga

And so concludes another story in the never ending tale of the Nordic Saga. 1984-1985 had been a year filled with victories, defeat, academic achievements, but best of all, pride. Pride soared to an all time high as two athletic teams proved their championship quality by taking state—a feat most thought they could not do. Pride showed through as students proved their academic qualities in the form of high CTBS and College Placement Exam scores. Pride was in the artwork that graced the showcases and the closing pages of the Nordic Saga. Pride was everywhere as Norse proved to not only themselves, but rival schools that they were a contender.

But in the midst of the glory came defeat. The state's top marching band fell to second place losing to their rivals, Pueblo South. Cross Country fell as the reigning State Champions, placing second in state. Defeat also came in the form of losing two fine coaches. Football Coach Dominic Capra told a group of disappointed players that he would not be returning as coach of the State Champs, while Girls Basketball Coach Steve Schiell left his position of head coach of the district champs. But to the Norse, these were only temporary set-backs. Next year, well, be-

1984-1985 proved to be a year for change. While a second term president took oath and wars raged on throughout El Salvador and the Middle East, Northglenn High took on new priorities. Due to a new Colorado State Law, the annual tradition of arena registration closed to a controversial end. Students now had to choose their classes one year in advance and then receive their computer assigned classes the following year. To many, this was confusing as they could not successfully decide what classes they wanted to take. To others, it was a convenience as the process proved less time and hassle. Another change came in the form of graduation requirements. As District Twelve strived to better the overall education of students, new requirements were implemented to broaden students horizons.

Overall, 1984-1985 was a year that will be remembered by all Norse. Though for many the year was a long struggle and emotions ran dry, for others, it was the best year spent in school. 1984-1985 could be considered one of the finest years Northglenn Senior High had ever seen.

WAS 84-85 A GOOD YEAR?? _____
WHICH HIGH SCHOOL IS THE BEST?? _____

An extensively detailed milkweed is highlighted by the inkwash process, which brings out the truest colors of the plant. The drawing by Dan E. Naen caught the eye of art teachers and Art Teacher Tom Garrison during its display at the Northglenn Mini Art Fair.

Crosshatch, the process of shading, crossed lines with pen and ink, is deeply detailed in Michelle Strauss's drawing of the paper bag. Extensive graphics, the deep folds in the sack, and the crinkled top gave the impression of there being one more Nordic bag in the bag.

The gravelly, spindled high class pump drawn by Michelle Strauss displays this common item. True imagination is portrayed by using the toe of the shoe as a background for the two fur view drawings of this pump.

Norse Notes to and from the Co-Editors

Dear Cindy

Well, what a year, and what a better time to write a final letter to you. Sitting here at the Educational Excellence Fair displaying The Nordic Saga, Northglenn High School's National Award Winning Yearbook gives me the time to write this to you and to the staff of the 1985 Nordic Saga. Long and trying are the two words which come to mind when looking back on the year. Only having three second year students, we obviously had our work cut out for us. You and I struggled, fought, disagreed, agreed, wondered, and discovered, but most important of all, we became friends. When the pressures of it all hit too hard, we had our salvation, the ever existent Muddy's (Thank heaven for Mexican Chocolate Coffee and Bageis!). The times we shared, whether alone or with the staff, the fun was always there. So, to my favorite Co-Editor, actually the only one I know, I say good luck always, you deserve the best! When 1995 arrives and we fly to Denver for our class reunion, let's get together and hit the "scene."

Love always,

Mike W. Rose

P.S. -To the staff: What a year you all must have had. I can still remember the first page shipment we did; no one knew quite what was going on, but thanks to our live-in stand-up comics, Tina Mackey and Ron Bossen, it all worked out. We had a great time, and I know all of you got a big kick out of all of it. So good luck, and always remember: ask three before me!

Dear Mike,

Well, here we sit at the Educational Fair, and it proves to be a perfect time to write the closing. Needless to say, it's been an interesting year for the staff. We've had to overcome more than our share of problems (Better yet disasters!), but we've managed to put out a book that will hopefully describe the true Nordic Saga. Adding a new Co-Editor who didn't know a thing about the book, massive staff changes (How many Photo Editors has it been?!), the constant batties between you and me and the staff, you and me and Mac, and just you and me. Well, we won't talk about it! I mean, I can't help it if I'm usually right, and you're, well, usually wrong! No, it's been a joint effort throughout the entire year, and I'll admit, if it hadn't been for you and your willingness to show me the true pride that goes into a great yearbook, I never would have made it this far.

To the staff: Well, you guys know how I feel. Sorry if I screamed a lot, and really, I didn't mean to (Well, not all of the time!). My thanks goes out to all of you. It's been a long year, and a good book has been produced. But my best wishes go out to the future staff (You're gonna need it!), and to the poor, desolate soul who is lucky enough to get Editor (I know a great psychologist, just ask Mac!). Have fun guys!

Love and best wishes,

Cindy A. Dugger

P.S. -If I see another headline in 30i, I'm going to get all of you!!

In order to recognize the 4-A State Champions from the 1984-1985 year and to alleviate the production cost of color endsheets, the Nordic Saga offers these pages, at cost, to any team or group winning a State Championship.

The picture of the 1984 State 4-A Soccer Champions was financed by the Northglenn Soccer Boosters, The Class Of 1985, Northglenn Senior High Letterman's Club, and the Northglenn Bingo Barn.
